

Says Wisconsin Law 'Evaded' in Labor Espionage

LaFollette Finds Informants Listed as 'Watchmen'

COMPANY GOT DATA

Worked for General Motors at Janesville, Testimony

Washington (AP)— Chairman LaFollette (D-Wis.) of the senate civil liberties committee charged today that the Pinkerton National Detective agency had "evaded" a strict Wisconsin law requiring registration of detectives.

He asserted the agency "got around" the statute by listing its informants as "watchmen" rather than detectives.

LaFollette made the charge after J. O. Camden, Chicago division manager for the agency, described its labor espionage work for the General Motors corporation and other employers in Wisconsin.

Camden said General Motors paid for labor information purchased from a Chevrolet plant worker at Janesville.

The Janesville arrangement was terminated last April, Camden said. Pinkerton officials testified yesterday they quit doing any General Motors espionage work on Jan. 31.

Camden described also the work of two Pinkerton operatives for the Bowman Dairy company of Wisconsin.

The two were ordered to "get future plans" of the Farmers' Union in Genoa City, Wis., and in Illinois, he said.

Neither operative was registered, he added.

"Evasion" of Law

LaFollette asked Rosseter, Pinkerton general manager, whether he regarded the agency's operating methods in Wisconsin as an "evasion" of the law.

"It would appear so to the man on the street, sure," Rosseter said.

Camden said the Janesville General Motors arrangements were made by the plant manager, a Mr. Fitzpatrick, who wanted data on "plant irregularities," union activities and the "general attitude of the workers."

He identified the regular employee who furnished the information as Harold Lewis, and said he was classified as a "watchman" on the company's books.

Pinkerton also conducted an investigation into "radicalism" and labor activity in Wisconsin for the National Metal Trades association, Camden said. The association was identified at earlier hearings as an employers' organization maintaining a widespread labor spy system.

Identified by Initials

This work, Camden related, was handled by two operatives identified only as "N. B." and "P. Y."

Neither was directly employed by Pinkerton, he added, and therefore not registered as a detective.

Camden said Lewis had been "contacted" by G. C. Beckard, alias A. W. Parkhurst, Camden's predecessor as Chicago division manager.

Camden said Lewis had mailed his secret reports to a post office box held in the name of "Otto Landeen," a name used by E. R. Kessler, superintendent of the agency's St. Paul office.

Neither Lewis nor Kessler were registered under the Wisconsin law requiring the registration of detectives, he testified.

Camden said Alfred Marshall, Chevrolet company personnel director, authorized last May an investigation of "radicalism" in the Janesville plant, but his instructions were never carried out.

"We considered it inadvisable to contact another correspondent at Janesville after Lewis discontinued his reports," he explained.

LEWIS' STATEMENT

Janville (AP)—Harold D. Lewis, whose name was brought into testimony before the senate committee investigating labor espionage, said today the testimony was correct except the statement that he agreed to report on activities of fellow workers "to make a little extra money."

A member of the executive committee of the United Automobile Workers' union at the Chevrolet plant here, Lewis said he went into espionage "for the union to obtain what information I could on how the spy system worked, reporting back to the union."

Snowplow Plunges

10 Feet as Bridge Falls Under Weight

Three Lakes, Wis.—(AP)—A snowplow operator and his assistant escaped serious injury early this morning when a light steel truss bridge three miles south of here on United States Highway 45 collapsed under their 10-ton plow. The bridge, plow equipment and the two men dropped 10 feet to the heavy surface of ice over a small creek. The ice did not break.

Lloyd Knutson, tractor operator, and Edward Danowski were bruised and shaken up in the accident.

Officials of the state highway department headquarters were here announced that traffic will be detoured around the wrecked bridge over a town road and State Highway 32. The possibility of constructing a new bridge this spring will receive immediate attention.

FAVORED FOR POST?

Members of the University of Wisconsin faculty at Madison withheld comment today on reports that it had unanimously recommended the appointment of Dean E. B. Fred (above) of the graduate school to succeed Glenn Frank as president.

Faculty representatives conferred yesterday with the executive committee of the regents which left today on a trip to interview five potential candidates.

John Callahan, chairman of the committee, said Dean Fred had been "mentioned prominently" and "would make a good man" but he doubted if the dean would accept.

The two were ordered to "get future plans" of the Farmers' Union in Genoa City, Wis., and in Illinois, he said.

Neither operative was registered, he added.

11 Feared Dead After Airliner Falls Into Bay

Prominent Westerners Aboard Plane in San Francisco Tragedy

BODIES NOT FOUND

Wreckage Must be Raised Before Victims are Located, Diver Says

BULLETIN

San Francisco (AP)— The coast guard reported today that only three bodies of the eleven victims in the Los Angeles-San Francisco airplane crash were found in the wreckage.

A short-wave broadcast from the scene of the wreck near the municipal airport, said the top of the cabin had been sheared off and eight victims apparently had been thrown out when the plane struck last night with terrific force.

San Francisco (AP)—Its 11 occupants given up for dead, a wrecked United Airlines plane was found early today under water except for its tail in south San Francisco bay where it plunged last night after passing up a landing field.

"There is no possibility anyone on board is alive," said B. M. Doolin, San Francisco airport manager, after returning from inspecting the wreckage.

Several prominent westerners, including a millionaire, were on board.

Later shifting tides pushed over the wreckage of the 12-ton ship, submerging it as a derrick and deep sea diver prepared to go to the scene, one and one-fourth miles from Mills field.

The tragedy increased to 43 the number who have died in western transport crashes since Dec. 15.

When found, the plane lay on its back with only about ten feet of the fuselage protruding. Its nose was rammed into the muddy bottom of the bay within a few miles of the airport over which it flew a few minutes before it dove into the bay about 9 o'clock last night.

It was variously reported as lying from two to five miles from where the airport borders the bay.

Must Raise Plane First

William Reed, noted diver said the most practical procedure was to lift the plane by derrick and remove the bodies after the wreckage has been ferried to the United Airlines shops in Oakland, across the bay from the airport.

Doolin added it would be at least half a day before salvage operations could be completed.

The 11 occupants, announced by United Airlines officials were:

Rodgers Meyer, Ridge, N. J. M. Lorge, 2100 Hauer boulevard, Los Angeles.

Mark Fontana, 57, millionaire

Paul Simon, a passenger in Stueber's car, suffered abrasions about the face and loss of two teeth and was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital. Both cars were damaged.

Harvard Professor

May Get U. of W. Job

Cambridge, Mass.—(AP)—A regents' committee seeking a new president for the University of Wisconsin headed toward Cambridge today to interview a Wisconsin alumnus, Dr. Payson S. Wild, Jr., 32-year-old assistant professor of government at Harvard.

Dr. Wild, considered an outstanding authority on international law, was one of a group of noted educators being interviewed. He was born in Chicago. He holds an A. B. degree from the University of Wisconsin and an A. M. and Ph. D. from Harvard.

During his studies at Harvard in 1927 and 1928 he served as an assistant in the department of government, and as an instructor and tutor in this department from 1929 to 1934. He was appointed assistant professor of government in 1935. He is also a tutor in the division of history, government and economics. Among the courses he teaches are elements of international law and international law as administered by the courts.

Employer-Labor Confab Called on Disputes Measure

Madison (AP)— Governor LaFollette summoned representatives of employers and labor to a luncheon session in the executive office today to discuss the Sigman-Severson labor disputes bill.

One of his guests was Harold W. Story, vice president of the Allis-Chalmers company, Milwaukee, whose views for a new draft of the bill are embodied in a substitute now pending in the assembly.

The others were three officials of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, President Henry Ohl, Jr., Secretary John J. Handley, Legal Counsel Joseph Padway and President Fred Zastrow of the Madison Federation of Labor.

The governor did not reveal the purpose of the conference.

The labor bill is on the calendar for action in the assembly tomorrow. The sponsors served notice of a fight on the substitute embodying what Story described as protection for employers and workers alike.

The original bill sets up a state labor board to handle industrial disputes.

Non-Partisan Vote Resolution Lost

In Assembly, 52-42

House Follows Committee Recommendation to Reject Referendum

Madison (AP)— The assembly killed today, 52 to 42, a resolution by Assemblyman Charles Budlong (R), Marinette, providing for a statewide referendum on non-partisan election of county officers and legislators.

The house followed the recommendation of its election committee. It rejected an amendment by Assemblyman Arthur Hilt (P), Alma, to exclude legislators.

Budlong said he believed firmly in the principle that "the will of the people must be the law of the land," and chided members who opposed his resolution but had voted previously for the initiative and referendum.

Assemblyman Elmer Genzmer (D), Mayville, said he favored non-partisan elections as a means of relieving the state of the "dictatorship of party leaders."

"Let's be honest about this," said Assemblyman David Sigman (P), Two Rivers. "We are all partisan on some issues and it couldn't be eliminated entirely."

The assembly passed two bills and sent them to the senate. They were the Genzmer bill increasing the penalties for giving false weight and measure and the Niemuth bill permitting county treasurers to appoint a bonded deputy.

By a 50 to 31 vote it killed the Kroeber bill which would have transferred the power of selecting precinct election officials in Milwaukee from the city election commission to the ward committeemen of the political parties.

Wants Highway Money

Held in Special Fund

Madison (AP)— Senator John Cashman (P) Denmark proposed today a bill to separate highway funds from other money in the state treasury to prevent diversion to other uses.

Cashman's measure provides that all revenue from gasoline taxes, automobile registration fees and drivers' licenses, in addition to federal highway aids, shall be paid immediately into a special highway fund appropriated automatically to the highway commission.

The bill also appropriates $5,000 for enforcement of the gas tax, and orders such revenue paid into the highway fund within a week after receipt.

Denies Cheese Concern

Violated Federal Law

Chicago (AP)— The Kraft-Phenix Cheese corporation presented its initial testimony today in answer to charges it violated price discrimination provisions of the Robinson-Patman act.

G. C. Pound of Chicago, vice president and sales manager, testified at a federal trade commission hearing that discounts allowed by the firm were not contrary to the act.

He contended further that his company was not engaged in interstate commerce and hence did not come under provisions of the Robinson-Patman act.

Women of Madrid Struggle for Food

Under Threats of Aerial Bombings

Madrid (Uncensored)— by messenger to Paris (AP)—Mistery stalks the women of Spain's beleaguered capital in their struggle for the meager supplies of food that remain.

Stoicism almost beyond belief marks the embattled population of the civil war-torn city, in the face of shells, bombs, unheated homes and the shortage of food.

For the men it means some kind of war work from the trenches to the factory; to the children it means a whole new life of work and play, broken by the terrifying thud of exploding shells.

But for the women, it means a dull, ceaseless struggle to keep the homes running—homes that, far from pleasant and warm and livable, are not even safe.

Insurance Man Is Slain After Clash at Party

Caretaker of Cottage Held For Questioning in Shooting

SELF-DEFENSE PLEA

Struck Woman and Threatened to Kill Both, Prisoner Says

Mequon, Wis.—(AP)—Clarence A. Henkel, prominent Milwaukee insurance and club man, was shot to death in a cottage in Mequon township today after what authorities said was an all-night drinking party.

District Attorney Charles L. Larson of Ozaukee county said the cottage caretaker, Leonard Hawkins, admitted shooting Henkel with a 12 gauge automatic shotgun in self-defense.

"It became a matter of his life or mine," Larson quoted the caretaker as saying.

Held for questioning with Hawkins was his sister-in-law, Mrs. Frances Gruber of Milwaukee, who accompanied Henkel to the cottage when he left Milwaukee yesterday afternoon and, Larson said, drank with the insurance man and finally became embroiled in a quarrel with him.

Larson said that at the moment no charge would be lodged against Hawkins.

Fired Three Times

The prosecutor said the weapon was fired three times, one charge hitting the ceiling, the second tearing into the floor and the third striking Henkel in the right side. He died almost immediately.

Mrs. Gruber and Hawkins were in a state of hysteria for hours after the shooting, Larson said, and could not give a coherent account of what had happened. Larson said the pair told him:

When Mrs. Gruber arrived at the cottage with Henkel they began drinking beer with Hawkins. At about 11 p. m., Hawkins retired to a bedroom on the second floor of the cottage, a year-around dwelling.

The woman and Henkel continued to drink beer, and shortly before 6 a. m. Henkel started out of the cottage, apparently in anger. He went to his car but changed his mind about leaving and returned to the cottage.

Renewed Quarrel

Henkel renewed a quarrel with Mrs. Gruber and as his anger mounted, he struck her in the mouth and then the forehead. Then he began throwing empty beer bottles at her.

Bleeding from the blows, Mrs. Gruber ran upstairs with Henkel close at her heels. All this time Hawkins was asleep.

"The first thing I knew was that Henkel was dragging me out of the bed," Hawkins said, according to Larson. "He told me he was going to kill me, too."

"After he dragged me from bed, Henkel started mauling me around. I don't remember all that happened. It became a matter of his life or mine. I ran for my shotgun which I kept in the room."

Larson said the fatal shot was fired while the men wrestled for the gun. Meanwhile, Mrs. Gruber had collapsed and was in a semi-conscious state, as closely as the district attorney has been able to ascertain.

Hawkins is a slender man, weighing about 150 pounds. Henkel weighed about 200. Both were in their thirties.

Mrs. Gruber formerly operated a tavern in the cottage.

Henkel was a leading Milwaukee bowler, a member of the Milwaukee Athletic club, a major league for many years. He accompanied the club bowling team to several national tournaments and was a frequent competitor in city and state tournaments.

Pope's Condition Good

As Lenten Season Opens

Vatican City (AP)—Pope Pius XI observed the start of the holy season of Lent today with his health comparatively good condition.

The holy father's rest last night was described as rather better than usual and he was able to receive further electrical treatment of the type which has improved his circulation in the past.

The pontiff told prelates he wanted his illness to make no difference in the lenient observance, and that he would take as much of his usual part as possible.

Roosevelt Advocates 'Long-Run' Plan to End Dust Storms, Drought

Ohio Democrat Fears Court Plan May Lead to 'Hitler Or Mussolini' Government

Washington (AP)— The house passed today the Sumners' bill to permit supreme court justices with 10 years service to retire at full pay at the age of 70.

The measure went through on a roll call vote without a single amendment. Several Republicans joined Democratic sponsors in urging passage.

The measure would extend to the members of the supreme court the same privilege of retirement now extended to members of the other federal courts.

One amendment which was defeated would have raised the retirement age to 75 instead of 70.

Speaker Bankhead announced the vote 315 to 75.

Washington (AP)— In the first burst of Democratic opposition on the house floor to President Roosevelt's court reform program, Representative Lamneck (D-Ohio) suggested today it might lead to a "Hitler, a Mussolini or a Stalin government."

Lamneck spoke shortly before the house planned to take up a bill for retirement of supreme court judges at 70—a part of the judiciary reform plan recommended by Mr. Roosevelt.

"How long," the Ohioan asked, "will we permit the executive branch of government to do our legislating for us?"

"I hope the time has arrived when we will meet this challenge to the usurping of our powers and duties and serve notice we intend to insist that the executive occupy his position; that the judiciary shall occupy its position, and that the legislative branch of government will do the job the constitution intended it to do."

Lamneck spoke soon after President Roosevelt had arranged a series of conferences with congressional leaders on his court reform proposals. The meetings were designed, some officials believed, to amplify and expand his aims.

Group Fights Plan

White House aids announced the conferences as 10 Democratic representatives banded together to unite opposition to the president's program, two minor phases of which were the house calendar for immediate debate.

Five Democratic senators were summoned to the White House for a discussion this afternoon. They were Senators Neely of West Virginia, McCarran of Nevada, McGill of Kansas, Hatch of New Mexico and Hughes of Delaware.

McCarran, who once served as chief justice of the supreme court of Nevada, and Hughes are supporting the president. The others have not publicly committed themselves on his plan.

Senator Logan and Representative Vinson, both Kentucky Democrats, were invited to confer with Mr. Roosevelt later this afternoon. They were asked to come to dis-

Tax Rate in Appleton Is Among Lowest in State for Cities of Same Population

Appleton taxpayers are paying less tax per $1,000 of full valuation than any other city of comparable size in Wisconsin except Janesville, statistics carried in the Wisconsin Taxpayer, publication of the Wisconsin Alliance, show.

Appleton's full value property tax rate of $19.15 per $1,000, not only rates second low for all Wisconsin cities having populations of between 20,000 and 30,000, but is ninth lowest of 143 Wisconsin cities listed in the report.

Janesville, with $19.03, is the only city of between 20,000 and 30,000 with a lower rate than Appleton's. It has a population of 23,611, has a $21.44 tax rate; Eau Claire, with 26,287, pays $26.89; Fond du Lac, with 26,449, pays $34.37; Manitowoc, with 22,963, pays $22.14; Wausau, with 23,758, pays $28.67, and Wauwatosa, with 21,194, pays $27.13.

Few Pay Less
Communities with lower tax rates than Appleton generally have much smaller populations. Buffalo, with a population of 261, pays $14.26; Horicon with 2,214, pays $19.06; Hudson, with 2,725, pays $13.92; Jefferson, with 2,639, pays $18.37; Plymouth, with 3,882, pays $16.54; Port Washington, with 3,693, pays $15.99; and Whitewater, with 3,465, pays $18.89. The other 134 cities listed all have higher tax rates.

Appleton's local tax rate of $19 is made on the basis of an assessment which is 100.79 per cent of the full value as recommended by the supervisor of assessment.

At Janesville, the local assessment is 90.82 per cent of the recommended full value but the rate is $21 per thousand.

Valuation Higher
In Appleton, the local assessed value of all property increased from $44,186,050 in 1935 to $44,554,325 in 1936, a rise of 8 per cent. A corresponding increase in general property tax levy brought the total from $839,551 in 1935 to $846,547 for 1936. The tax rate remained unchanged.

Favor Rejection Of Bills to Cut Gas, License Fees

Highway Committee Would Turn Down Rohan and Rice Measures

Madison — (7)—The assembly highway committee recommended today the rejection of bills which provide for a reduction of from 4 to 3 cents in the state gasoline tax and a $5 license fee for all automobiles.

The gas tax proposal was sponsored by Assemblyman Ora Rice (R) Delavan, and the license fee bill by Assemblyman William Rohan (D) Kaukauna.

Rohan said his bill would bring into use cars placed in storage because owners couldn't pay the fee fixed by weight classification. He said it would benefit many farmers and laborers if passed. There was no opposition at the hearing late yesterday.

Rice's bill was approved by spokesmen for gasoline dealers' associations, motor clubs and several individuals. Roy Brecke, Milwaukee, secretary of the Wisconsin Petroleum association, said there would be no objection to a 4 cent tax if all revenue was used for highway purposes.

Brecke contended increased sales under a lower tax would maintain revenues at the present levels. He said Wisconsin dealers are losing much business to competitors in Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota which have a 3 cent tax.

Rice said gas tax collections total approximately $18,000,000 a year and the revenue from auto license fees is about $9,000,000 a year. Brecke said about 60 per cent of the refund claims filed in 1936 under an exemption clause of the present law came from farmers. He contended many claims, totaling about $1,500,000 a year, probably would be found illegal if investigated.

Senator John Cashman (P), Denmark, told the committee he has drawn up a bill to prohibit any diversion of gas taxes from the highway fund. He opposed a tax cut, declaring the need of good highways is imperative and every cent now collected is needed.

Bills Deferred
The committee deferred action on a bill by Assemblyman Martin Franzkowiak (D), Milwaukee, fixing April 1 as the deadline for the payment of car licenses. It also laid over for two weeks Assemblyman Kroenke's bill which would prohibit use of bicycles in the night time.

The taxation committee laid over two bills, one by Assemblyman Joseph Theisen (D), Sheboygan, providing for deferred payment on real estate taxes for 1936 and 1937, and the other by Assemblyman Kelly, Kostuck and Handrich giving county boards power to purchase excess delinquent taxes from local units.

A joint resolution by Assemblyman Franzkowiak to prevent brewers from becoming financially interested in taverns was laid over for amendment which would authorize the attorney general to investigate an act on complaints.

Kindergarten Pupils Build Model Bus for Class Study

The "Jefferson Special" is running overtime these days as Kindergarten pupils hurriedly make trips to the birthplaces of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington as they hear tales of the life of these men whose birthdays will be celebrated this month.

The large bus was constructed by pupils under Miss Rose C. Helm at Jefferson and also is being used for trips to neighboring cities and interest points in Wisconsin. One student acts as the driver with the other pupils going through the motions of paying fares and choosing the best seats.

Modeled after regular passenger busses in use in Appleton, the machine has proved to be of interest to pupils and Miss Helm has correlated her school work with bus trips. Traffic rules and the duties of a bus driver have been studied by riders. Benefits of living in the city are being stressed in the study and the pupils have learned the various directions and which way streets of Appleton have been laid.

Assemblymen of Appleton Area Split on Proposal Amendment to Labor Bill Divides Solons From This Region

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
Madison — Assemblymen of the Appleton area were divided almost equally for and against the rejection of the important Thomson amendment to the administration's labor relations bill when the amendment came up for consideration as a special order of business in the lower house Tuesday.

Administration forces were led by Assemblyman David Sigman (P.) of the second Manitowish county district, who moved for and succeeded in marshaling enough votes from the other party representatives to defeat the Thomson amendment, designed expressly to make the labor bill a fairer one for employers of labor. According to Progressive leaders, and the spokesmen of organized labor present at the capitol, the Thomson measure would have taken the heart of labor's demands out of the bill.

Included in those voting for rejection were: Assemblymen David Sigman, William Sweeney, (D.) De Pere, Francis Yindra, (D.) Manitowish, Harold Lytle, (P.) Green Bay, Paul Fuhrman, (P.) Oshkosh, A. J. Houdrich, (P.) Menasha, C. A. Budlong, (R.) Marinette, and William Rohan (D.), Kaukauna.

MARKING FOREHEADS WITH ASHES LENT FOR CATHOLICS

"Remember man that dust thou art and unto dust thou shalt return."

Catholic priests repeated this formula over and over again today as they anointed the heads of their parishioners with ashes made from palms blessed on Palm Sunday a year ago. Distribution of ashes takes place in Catholic churches on Ash Wednesday as a reminder to the people that life is fleeting and to symbolize the humility that is expected during the six weeks of lent.

Children of St. Joseph's school are shown at the chancel rail as their heads were marked with ashes by the Rev. Father John. The sign of the cross is made upon the forehead of each person as the priest repeats the words of the Latin ritual. (Post-Crescent Photo) ish," with hero riding to rescue Well, Frank Lloyd says they of it — afraid audiences would in nick of time. made that finish, and were afraid laugh.

Oppose Rejection
Lined up against rejection were Albert Shimek, (D.), Algoma, Mark Catlin, (R.), Appleton; Frank N. Graess, (R.), Sturgeon Bay, Henry Hupfaut, (D.), Appleton, Leo Niemuth, (R.), of the first Winnebago county district, Frank Lingelbach, (D.), Oconto, and Nels Larson, (R.), of Neenah.

Lively debate featured the consideration of the labor bill and its amendments at yesterday's session. When Speaker Paul Alfonso, (P.), Pence, after having called to task several members for "dilatatory motions," attempted to ask a member on the floor whether the governor's support of the labor measure would influence that member's vote. Assemblyman Frank Graess of Sturgeon Bay jumped to his feet to object to debate of measures on the floor by the speaker. The speaker should not set a precedent by participating in debate on bills before the house, said Mr. Graess. Alfonso replied that in the future he would ask unanimous consent of the house before making any remarks or asking questions of any member.

Wants no Delay
Assemblyman C. A. Budlong of Marinette told the house that he would brook no delay in passage of the labor bill after Thursday of this week, when the bill will once more be on the assembly calendar.

At the Tuesday session Mr. Budlong moved for the tabling of his non-partisan elections measure until after the assembly has considered his resolution for a referendum on the question. Budlong's motion was adopted by an aye vote, and his bill calling for the non-partisan election of county and legislative officers was laid over. Budlong's referendum was scheduled for assembly action on the Wednesday calendar.

Hollywood—Unreel parade:
Peggy Wood is always being mistaken for Frieda Inescort and vice versa. It may be because both once played in "Trelawney of the Wells" and one followed the other as Portia with George Arliss.

That was how Miss Wood (being gracious) explained it on the set after, knowing both, I'd talked to her five minutes under the impression she was Frieda Inescort. Adventures like this are disconcerting, and possibly dangerous. What, for instance, if the actress you think is somebody else happens NOT to like the actress you think she is?

Roger Pryor's birthday present to his bride, Ann Southern, was a book of round-trip airplane tickets — Hollywood to Chicago — so she can visit him.

Ray Jones, one of the best of studio still photographers, attributes his success in snapping stars to eight years of training as a photographer of babies back in Superior, Wis.

"The technique is the same," he said. "You've got to catch a baby at the exact moment or you've lost your picture."

What I'd thought he was going to say was you can't reason with a baby, either.

On the Warner lot is a picture called "Public Wedding." They could film a sequel to that and call it "Public Honeymoon," confining the story merely to what was made of Dick Powell and Joan Blondell's. But they won't be sure of that.

"Maid of Salem," the Colbert-MacMurray witchcraft movie, is a well-done piece but many of us thought the ending lacked zest. What it lacked, we decided, was an "old-fashioned D. W. Griffith finish."

Today, Feb. 10th Is Ash Wednesday The Beginning of the Lenten Season which the Christian Church throughout the world observes. It has set aside 46 days preceding Easter for the special consideration of our Saviour's Holy Passion.

This is a time of great significance to the LUTHERAN CHURCH and to its millions of members all over the world. During that season we walk again with our Savior over the pathway of suffering and death.

How wondrous is this Savior who paid this fearful price, so that we are granted the full mercies of God, freely and without price!

How merciful This Substitute who died for us to save us from SIN and from the POWER OF SIN.

On the cross our sin becomes His, though He knew no sin, and by His Grace the righteousness of His perfect life becomes ours in FAITH.

May we ever recall this Eternal Sacrifice of Heaven's Highest Love in this perpetual, penitent prayer:

"O Christ, Thou Lamb of God, That Takest Away The Sin of The World, Have Mercy Upon Us, O Christ, Thou Lamb of God, That Takest Away The Sin of The World, Grant Us Thy Peace."

DEDUCTIONS

A professional man may deduct all necessary expenses incurred in the pursuit of his profession. These include the cost of supplies used in his practice, office rent, cost of light, water, fuel, and telephone in his office, the hire of office assistants, and expenses paid in the operation and repair of an automobile, based upon the proportion of time it is used in making professional calls or for other professional purposes.

Many physicians use their residences both as their offices and their homes. In such instances the physician may deduct as a business expense the rental value of the rooms occupied for office purposes if he actually pays rent, and also the cost of light and heat furnished these rooms. Also, he may deduct a portion of the wages paid domestic servants whose time is partly occupied in caring for these rooms. Membership dues in professional societies are deductible. Physicians and dentists who keep in their waiting rooms current magazines and newspapers for the benefit of their patients may deduct this item as a business expense. The cost of professional journals for the taxpayers' own use is also a deductible item.

The cost of technical books is not a deductible item, being a capital expenditure, but a proportionate amount for each year's depreciation of the books may be deducted. Depreciation may also be taken on office furniture and equipment. Insurance premiums on office or other professional equipment, and liability insurance may be deducted. A premium paid for automobile liability insurance should be apportioned and that part of the premium attributable to business may be deducted as a business expense.

Rotarians Hear About Work at Disposal Plant

Appleton Project Is One of Nine in Fox River Valley

The treatment of sewage in the new Appleton disposal plant was traced by Frank Fulmer, engineer, at the Rotary club luncheon meeting yesterday at Hotel Northern. Mr. Fulmer represented the Greeley and Hansen Engineering firm which was in charge of the work. The local plant is one of nine being completed in the area from Lake Winnebago to Green Bay. Costs of the plants are: Appleton, $700,000; Green Bay, $1,400,000; De Pere, $376,000; Kaukauna, $375,000; Little Chute, $44,000; Neenah-Menasha, $955,000; Oshkosh, $915,000; Wrightstown, $25,000; Kimberly, $45,000. The plants will serve a population of about 140,000 persons.

Partial Treatment

Appleton's plant is a partial treatment system with provisions made for additional treatment during extremely hot weather and times of low water, the speaker said.

Sewage will enter the plant at the end of the screen and grit department and will then pass through a screen so that coarse materials can be removed by mechanical means, Mr. Fulmer stated.

It is then transported to a grinder and pulverizer after which it goes to the grit chambers where inert and heavy materials drop to the bottom of the tank while organic matters pass on, he explained. Sewage is then passed to the settling tanks which are 11 feet deep and 17 feet in diameter and the flow is decreased so that settling occurs, he said.

To Digester Tanks

About 90 per cent of the settling fluids ordinarily drop to the bottom of the tank and is then called raw sludge, Mr. Fulmer pointed out, and this is moved from the outside of the tank to the center so that it may be drawn off into a digester tank which is 70 feet in diameter and 23 feet deep.

After being treated in the digester tanks, the sludge is drawn to a storage or dry bin, the speaker said. Heating of solids aids in digestive work, he stated.

SUBZERO WEATHER FELT

Milwaukee—(P)—Fair and warm weather in the west and south were forecast for tonight in Wisconsin which felt subzero temperatures generally last night. Increasing cloudiness and rising temperatures were predicted for tomorrow by the government weather bureau here.

The Superior-Duluth area reported the state low of -24 between 6:30 P. M. last night and 6:30 A. M. today. Two snow flurries were the warmest there in the last 24 hours.

The upper Michigan peninsula experienced warmer temperatures than Wisconsin. Marquette was the coldest with -8 and Sault Ste. Marie the warmest reporting point with a minimum of 10.

Lowest temperatures in the last 12 hours and highest in the last 24 hours, respectively, for some cities, were: Duluth, -24; Green Bay, -10 and 12; Lacrosse, -14 and 8; Madison, -8 and 14; Milwaukee, -2 and 20; Escanaba, Mich., -4 and 18; Marquette, -2 and 16; Sault Ste. Marie, 10 and 20.

Hold Final Practice For Wall-Scaling Meet

Final practice for the wall scaling contest which will be staged as part of the Boy Scout annual circus was held last night by troop 12 at the Roosevelt school. The squad will compete against Troop 4, sponsored by the American Legion, in the circus at Keweenaw, scoutmaster, was in charge of a brief discussion of the scout oath and law. Camporee projects including woodburning and carving were considered by the troop. Indoor games were played at the close of the session.

Two Women Fined for Breaking Parking Law

Two women pleaded guilty of violating the 90-minute parking ordinance when they appeared in municipal court this morning and each was fined $2 and costs by Judge H. Ryan. They are Mrs. Florence Fortenk, 218 S. Outagamie street, and Mrs. Adelaide Lesell, 824 E. Hancock street.

Valley Insurance Club Gathers at Oshkosh

Members of the Fox River Valley Insurance club held a regular meeting at Hotel Raulo, Oshkosh, Tuesday evening. Appleton members of the club attended the session at which a round-table discussion was held and the annual statement studied.

About 20 members of the Appleton Medical society were present at a meeting at Conway hotel Tuesday evening. A dinner preceded a business session.

Attorneys Differ on Proposed Supreme Court Reorganization

A wide variety of opinions on President Roosevelt's proposed reorganization of the supreme court and other branches of the federal judiciary system, is held by Appleton attorneys.

Five questioned today all objected to one or more features of the proposed reorganization, but the objections differed as widely as did the general political views of those who presented them.

One said the proposed appointment of additional justices to the supreme court is clearly an attempt by President Roosevelt to pack the court with men of his own political beliefs that he will be able to pass legislation heretofore considered unconstitutional. If the court is so increased, he maintained, the change may be a danger to the present system of government in the United States.

Another maintained that a supreme court with 15 judges would be little different than a court with 9, 11 or 13 judges, and that it was merely a move to provide good jobs for deserving Democrats.

A third said he approved of proposed steps to expedite the handling of cases in federal courts but could see little point in increasing the number of supreme court justices. The decisions he said, probably will be 8 to 7 instead of 5 to 4.

One attorney said he favored a liberal government and that he had no fear of any untoward consequences of supreme court reorganization as long as President Roosevelt is in office. He objected to departure from the traditional number of nine supreme court justices, however, on the ground that it would set a bad precedent. If the number can be increased now to 15, it can be increased still further under some future administration, he said.

A fifth expressed approval of a plan that would require retirement of supreme court justices at a definite age, and suggested 72. He held, however, that if the number of justices were increased, the court might, by its size, cease to be a court and become a legislative congress.

Wylie to Urge 'Workable' State Recovery Measure

'Otherwise Don't Pass Any,' Is His Recommendation

Milwaukee—(P)—Fred M. Wylie, a member of the state trade practices commission, said yesterday he will recommend to the legislature that unless a state recovery law that is "workable" is passed, it will be better not to pass any new law at all.

The present law expires July 1. Wylie's statement came in answer to requests by delegates attending the Master Builders of Wisconsin convention for an explanation of why the construction code had not been enforced.

"I'm not trying to justify what's been done since 1933 in code legislation," he said. "They sold you a lot of blue sky, that's all. As far as I'm concerned, I'd have liked to resign from this damned job before I started it."

Wylie said the present law did not provide funds for proper financing of enforcement and the commission was operating "in the red now."

Convention Stand

The convention adopted a resolution unanimously asking either prompt enforcement of the codes or removal of the recovery act from the statutes.

Delegates also adopted a resolution asking the legislature to enact a measure to be prepared by the association licensing all contractors and another urging representation of contractors on the state appraisal board of the banking commission on an equal footing with realtors.

E. T. Sauer of Milwaukee was chosen president of the group of officers are: Richard C. Ferge, secretary, and John Gysbers, Wau-pun, treasurer. L. R. Mangold of Burlington was named trustee for three years.

District chairmen elected were: J. C. Jansen, Milwaukee, eastern; William Larsen, Racine, southeastern; Charles Kapelle, Mayville, southern; Frank Guenther, Sheboygan, central; Albert Klink, La-Crosse, western; Joseph Sevoille, Green Bay, northwestern; George Lund, Eau Claire, northwestern.

Army Engineers Confident They Will Win Fight

Flood-Pressure Continues To Menace Levees of Mississippi

Memphis, Tenn.—(P)—As if determined to gain by siege what they failed to win by assault, ponderous crests kept flood areas alive along the mid-Mississippi today by stubborn refusal to spend the almost imperceptible southward crawl.

The river fell slowly above Memphis but in this sector record levels remained unchanged hour after hour while the brown tide edged higher downstream to New Orleans, forcing more evacuations.

The Memphis district office of the army engineers warned the top of the flood is "very flat" and the river will stand near its crest here for several days. As long as this situation prevails the remorseless pressure on the overtaxed levees may force a major breach at any time.

The engineers remained confident they would win their fight but explained sluggishness of the crests made imperative a ceaseless vigil along the dikes from here to Helena, Ark.

Return to Homes

Rehabilitation went ahead at quickened pace in the Ohio valley and the lists of homeless shrunk while residents moved back into their homes there, but in the Mississippi valley the spreading waters swelled tributaries and routed hundreds of lowlanders.

The stage at Memphis has remained nearly constant for the last 24 hours and may remain at its peak level of around 48.65 for the next few days.

On the Memphis gauge the Mississippi has been on a rising stage above the 1927 mark for 12 days and for 10 days above the previous record reached in 1913. The levee was almost four feet above the previous record today.

The water level continued to fall slowly at Cairo, where the Ohio dumped its unprecedented billions of gallons into the Mississippi at Hickman, Ky., and New Madrid, Mo., relieving pressure and anxiety.

While the death list stood at 436 along the flood's destructive path through the Ohio and Mississippi valleys, Red Cross officials said the refugee total remained almost stationary not far below 1,000,000.

The removal of hundreds of families along backed up tributaries in Arkansas, northern Louisiana and Mississippi tended to offset the number returning to homes further north.

Realty Transfers

The following real estate transfers were filed today at the office of A. L. Collar, Outagamie county register of deeds:

W. C. T. U. Wants 2 More Lawyers to Seek County Jobs

Adams, Wis.—(P)—"Wanted—two good lawyers to take up residence in Adams county and be eligible to run for state's attorney and county judge."

The Women's Christian Temperance union voted at a recent meeting to insert this advertisement in a newspaper outside Adams county.

The W. C. T. U. said there are now only two attorneys among the county's 8,000 population and it would like to see some competition for the two available jobs.

The villages of Adams and Friendship are the only two communities of any size in the county. Adams, the county seat, has a population of 1,231.

Ponder Definite Plan to Conclude Sit-Down Dispute

the group of eight men would hold their thirteenth session today (at 10 a. m. E. S. T.).

Just after midnight when the previous meeting ended after more than three hours of discussion, a source close to the parley said it was proceeding "along more definite lines" and that the situation had been "clarified considerably."

Unofficial information was that the one gap still to be closed was the issue of the extent to which General Motors would recognize the United Automobile Workers of America as the collective bargaining agency of its workers.

"As I have said from the beginning," Governor Murphy said, "both sides are doing their best to reveal an earnestness in trying to settle the matter."

He made the remark in answer to an inquiry as to which side was making concessions. The governor said that the negotiators were "in excellent spirits."

The conference, called by Governor Murphy at the "wish" of President Roosevelt, opened a week ago today. It was understood that during much of the time it has been in session the representatives of General Motors and the union have been in separate rooms, but that last night they were together with the governor and James F. Dewey, federal labor conciliator.

President Roosevelt revealed yesterday afternoon that he had talked last week with the heads of the two delegations—William S. Knudsen, General Motors executive vice president, and John L. Lewis, director-general of the strike, and Governor Murphy.

The president was represented as having urged them to settle the dispute quickly. It was indicated that Mr. Roosevelt was maintaining his neutrality in the conflict and made no demands on either side.

The labor department chiefs—Secretary Francis Perkins and assistant Secretary Edward E. McGrady—also were keeping in close touch with the situation by telephone and through the department's conciliator.

The midweek estimate of Automotive Daily News showed little change from last week's production in the automobile industry, despite the fact that General Motors no longer is producing passenger cars. The trade publication estimated the current week's output at 67,280 units, compared with 67,292 last week.

Announce Pay Boost

The Chrysler corporation announced a wage increase which it said would "approximate $13,000,000 to $14,000,000 a year." Chrysler has about 70,000 employees.

Estimates based upon an increase last June placed the average of the new one as 1 per cent for each employee.

John Brophy, director of the Lewis industrial union organization, said the C. I. O. "hails the wage increase... as a direct result of the outstanding progress made by its affiliate, the United Automobile Workers of America, in unionizing the automobile industry."

In Flint there were rumors that City Manager John M. Barringer might resign or be removed by the line, but for the most part they show a beaten indifference, strangely contrasting with the traditional Spanish joy in life.

Even the ever-present menace of the airplane does not break up the queue and women, refusing to leave their patiently won places in food lines to seek shelter, have fallen victim to insurgent air bombardment.

More than a score were killed in Tetuan, de Las Victorias when a bomb fell in the middle of the street, scattering a hail of fragments into waiting lines of women on either side.

Nightfall accents the sad quality of Madrid's war life. Cafes close at dusk and the whole city soon is plunged into deep obscurity, broken only by the momentary flashing of automobile headlights at street corners.

City in Darkness

In all the city of more than a million people, not a street light gleams and pedestrians frequently stumble into one another with only a muttered apology. Feet scrape along cautiously to find curbs and now and again a whispered curse is heard as some late wayfarer stumbles over broken pavements or a body.

Madrid loses its rich sunshine, but this winter, sunny days bring only terror. They are the signal almost inevitably for air raids and shelling of the center of the city, where buildings, particularly the American-owned telephone skyscraper, can be seen clearly for miles in the crisp Castilian air.

Madrid's little social life is that of the militiaman on leave. They crowd the cafes and restaurants to snatch what pleasure they can before going back to the front line trenches or the barricades guarding the streets.

Dawn brings none of its accustomed joy after nights heavy with the nearby roar of heavy artillery and the crackle of machine guns.

It means another day of struggling for the basic elements of life itself, of nervous listening for shells or drone of airplanes.

Lower Fares Placed in Effect on Bus Line

New rates for passengers riding the Fox River Bus company line in Appleton have been approved by the Wisconsin Public Service commission, Olaf Lindquist, owner of the line was informed today. The new fares will go into effect today.

Adult fares will be 5 cents, with a 3-cent fare for children over four years and less than 10 years. Universal free transfers also will be issued between the Fox River and Wisconsin Michigan Power company lines. The Fox River operates on Wisconsin avenue and the loop, Bennett, Oneida, Lawe and Mason street.

Troop Organization Outlined at Meeting

Duties of a scoutmaster and troop organization were considered by scouters at the Shawano training course held last night at Gresham. Walter Dixon and E. E. Thomas, both of Appleton, attended the meeting. Scouters present were from Leopold, Gresham, Shawano, Bowler and Tilleda.

The Bowler troop will hold a model scout meeting at the next training session March 1, at Tilleda.

City Commission, which has given almost dictatorial powers to Mayor Harold E. Bradshaw.

Barringer was criticized in some quarters for his organization of a "police reserve" force of civilians for emergency duty in the city where 3,300 national guardsmen have been concentrated to preserve order as a result of strike disorders.

Mayor Bradshaw ordered a small number of the "reservists" to augment guards around the city waterworks.

At Anderson, Ind., Paul Moore, 10, a U. A. W. member filed a $25,000 damage suit against General Motors and other defendants, alleging he was hurt during a riot that broke up a union meeting Jan. 25.

Talks to Camera Club On "Offset Process"

Edward W. Thomas of the Badger Printing company gave an illustrated talk on "Offset Process" at the monthly meeting of the Appleton Camera club held Tuesday evening in the Post-Crescent building. Various steps required in the production of a picture as it appears in news print were explained by the speaker who used various materials in the several steps as illustrated for the talk.

A traveling exhibit of photographic prints from the Aurora Illinois Camera club also was discussed and criticized. Next month a traveling exhibit of the Peoria Camera club of Peoria, Ill., will be received.

Rate of Pay for Farm Workers in State Increases

Wisconsin Level Highest For Winter Season Since 1931

With the general increase in price levels, wages of Wisconsin farm laborers also have risen and now are the highest for the winter season reported since 1931, according to the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and United States departments of agriculture.

Last year the annual index of farm wage rates reached parity for the first time since 1931. From the low point of 60 per cent of the pre-war level reported for 1933, farm wage rates have steadily increased along with the better purchasing power of Wisconsin farmers.

Some change has taken place during the past year in farm employment. While the total number of persons working on farms of Wisconsin crop correspondents, both family and hired laborers, was probably not as great during 1936 as the previous year, the number of hired workers employed last year was larger than the previous year. This may indicate that a number of younger members of the farm families of the state have found employment in other industries or that the increase in farm income has made it possible for more of them to attend school. Possibly with the increase in farm income, some of the members of the family may now be receiving regular wages and be reported as hired workers.

Reports from Wisconsin crop correspondents the first of this year indicated that there are about 44 hired persons and 173 family workers employed for each 100 farms. Wages paid farm laborers at the beginning of the year were somewhat lower than reported for October, but were considerably above those paid Jan. 1, 1936, according to the crop reporting service.

The wages paid farm laborers the first of the year averaged $23 per month with board and $35.75 without board, and day laborers received $1.30 per day with board and $1.80 without board. Last year the average wage rates on Jan. 1 were reported at $19.25 per month with board and $30.75 without board while the wage rates by the day averaged $1.10 with board and $1.55 without board.

TRADE DURING WAR OR NOT AT ALL

And now another spectre is athwart the pathway of Senator Nye and all those other gentlemen who were so sure America could be diverted from participation in another European conflict by merely cracking down on some imaginary munition makers and cutting foreign trade routes.

For Britain has let us know very definitely that if we are to follow a policy of shutting off raw materials to belligerents she would like to know it now so that she may throw her peacetime commerce, a very valuable item, to some nations that may be depended upon to sell her during wartime.

This statement, fortified by the visit of Ranciman of the British Board of Trade upon the President seems to be based upon reality. For the British Isles are not self-supporting. They do not produce sufficient food for their own people. They have not the raw materials to supply their own extensive industries.

Our commerce with them in peacetime is ordinarily rated as highly satisfactory. They buy most of our cotton shipped abroad. They are a constant and persistent purchaser from our immense granary of foodstuffs. But they do not like to trade with a people who would starve them in case of war in order to keep its own skirts clean.

The idea that we shall not ship raw materials to countries at war is further blocked by our present system of trade agreements. When we make an agreement with Canada or Cuba or Britain or France, highly satisfactory upon our part, shall be include a provision voiding the agreement in case our customer gets tangled in a war, and when it needs the agreement more than at any other time?

Another big bubble has burst. Another big vaudeville act ends in a rain of vegetables. The men who had the key to all our safety—a key which also would perpetually return them to office—find that in order to save us from conflict in case of war they must destroy us during peace.

THE BICYCLE IS BACK

Life is a complicated business. Municipal authorities whose hair is greyed by the problems of traffic control face new problems presented by the bicycling craze.

In 1935, United States manufacturers produced 640,000 bicycles. Figures for 1936 are not available although it is indicated last year's production topped that for 1935. Indications are that 1937 production will be even larger. And the 1935 figure was the biggest in thirty years.

The problem presented by the cyclist is one which cannot be dodged. It is being solved in some cities, especially the larger ones, by construction of special cinder-surfaced paths through shady parks. If the bicycle continues to grow in popularity, smaller municipalities must adopt measures to assure greater safety for the riders.

No one has come forward with the real explanation for the revived popularity of the bicycle. Pictures of bicycling motion picture actresses wearing shorts probably have proved to be good advertising but they cannot have sold all the bicycles during these last years. Probably the real reason is that bicycling is such good fun. It was good fun back in the Nineties when bicycles, some of them, were "built for two," and millions rode.

Millions again may be riding bicycles, finding health and fun in the sport. These millions will present another traffic problem. They must be safeguarded.

AN UN-FUNNY JOKE

It ought to be "curtains" for the old one-armed paperhanger wheeze. Like the mother-in-law joke and others of the sort it is neither funny nor true. A westerner who lost an arm in a hunting accident has been hanging wallpaper for 15 years. He says he has papered the walls of 2,000 homes and claims to be a better and faster worker than most men with two arms.

He suffers one real difficulty. That is the doubt of prospective customers that he can do the work. His hardest job, he says, is winning them over to give him the contract. Sometimes he has to paste several rolls of paper on a wall before he lands a new patron, but there are no complaints afterwards.

It all goes to show that you can't trust proverbs or wisecracks just because they are hoary with age. It also shows that almost anybody can do almost anything if he is determined enough.

FIGHTING FORCES UNDER UNIFIED COMMAND

This nation is committed to a defense program which calls for the largest peacetime expenditures for the purpose in its history.

The taxpayer has to foot the bill. Just now, when European powers are engaged in an arms race and when the threat of a major war is ever present, the taxpayer is inclined to regard the spending of any sum within reason to safeguard national integrity as a sum well spent.

The taxpayer, however, is not likely to regard squabbling among the services in any friendly fashion. He is paying a stiff price for defense and he will want to know that there is cooperation among his delegated defenders.

It is said in Washington that the proposal to create a single Department of National Defense is to be revived. The proposal had the support of the late Speaker Byrns and the late Representative McSwain, chairman of the House military affairs committee. While the proposal has not been defined formally, it contemplates the merging of the Army, the Navy and the Air Corps under one head, each with equal status. Its advocates insist such coordination would immeasurably simplify the outlining of a national defense program and would make for both economy and efficiency.

These claims seem to be supported by reason. It is no secret that jealousy does exist between the Army and the Navy. The Air service, split between the Army and Navy, is a house divided against itself. In the Army, air service representation is smothered in the general staff.

Too, there is no real agreement among the services concerning division of duties and placing of responsibilities in coast defense. If we are not again to fight in foreign waters, a premise to which all of us are devoutly committed, it is reasonable to assume that the immense sums we are spending are for the purpose of guarding our coastline from attack.

If, then, there can be no unanimity of purpose to this end, what use to spend money?

Grant that the ranking officers of the two older services fear the loss of tradition and prestige. The nation and its needs should outweigh pride. All of the other important nations have moved for unified command. Are we to lag in taking a step which obviously has so much to commend it?

There seems to be no reason to believe we will do so. We have had one bitter experience of war in recent years. We are willing to pay a high premium for insurance against involvement in another. We will not want to see the work of that investment lessened by the pulling and hauling of selfish groups.

A RIGHT UPPER-CUT

The public does not ask from its sheriff and district attorney graceful language in outlining their conception of particular duties.

But Outagamie county officials approached pretty close to what one might call literature in dealing with the bandit slot machines.

We reprint this statement in order to pay our respects to it and because with well modeled words it states a situation and a duty in a manner that might well be taken as a standard for others occupying similar situations.

Here it is in full:

"Complaints have been coming into this office, since we have taken over our respective duties, that slot machines are moving into Outagamie county."

"Such a situation cannot and will not be tolerated. It is our intention, by this statement, to notify anyone concerned to remove these devices from their places of business, immediately. Outagamie county has always been a clean, law-abiding county. It is our intention to keep it so."

"One who plays a slot machine is defeated before he starts. He can't possibly win. The machines are fixed to pay a certain percentage to the owners and operators, and almost always, they are fixed to pay everything in and nothing out."

"Slot machines are definitely crooked, and dishonest. There is no element of true gambling or chance in them."

"Until the legislature will legalize and properly regulate them, slot machines are out as far as Outagamie county is concerned. We have not the right, nor the inclination to permit them to be operated."

Maybe Kutz Is Wrong But—There are other trades besides newspaper work that would make good motion pictures. Double features during the last few months have been cluttered with fables about newspaper work and while they are just a laugh to most newspapermen, some are so out of line that there should be something done about it. Maybe a campaign would do some good. Probably a couple of losers in the last election could wage the drive on the lousy movies to get in trim for their next campaign.

Wouldn't it be nice, just now, to pull up stakes and take a trip down to someplace in or near Hawaii where there was no news about the supreme court, Spain, the floods or the fuel situation?

And just lie in the shade of a palm tree and doze to the whisper of the waves?

It's more than just a whim that makes Hawaii beckon, too. It is a stern family tradition that one of us get enough money some day to go tripping merrily down a gang plank into Honolulu and put in a vacation there. Dad once put in a spell at Honolulu and he was bound and determined to go back. He didn't have as good a time in Hawaii as he might have, and he felt a little bit cheated. One reason was that the Spanish-American war was on at the time, and Dad had contracted typhoid from army canned beef on the way to the Philippines. He was unceremoniously dumped off the boat and spent his Hawaiian vacation in bed. What was worse, he never got back again. So somebody has to go down to Hawaii as a representative of the family and fulfill this tradition.

I think I will write the relatives and nominate myself.

On the other hand, there is no use carrying a dream too far. After all, I know my relatives.

And maybe it is just as well that lunch-time yesterday was approaching when I punched out this stuff.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Selig, 415 E. South River street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Lucille, to Bobby DeGure, son of Mrs. Rose DeGure, 207 E. Fremont street. Miss Selig is at present a teacher at the Elmdele Country school. Mr. DeGure is golf professional at Wisconsin Rapids and during the winter is teaching golf at the local Y.M.C.A.

25 YEARS AGO

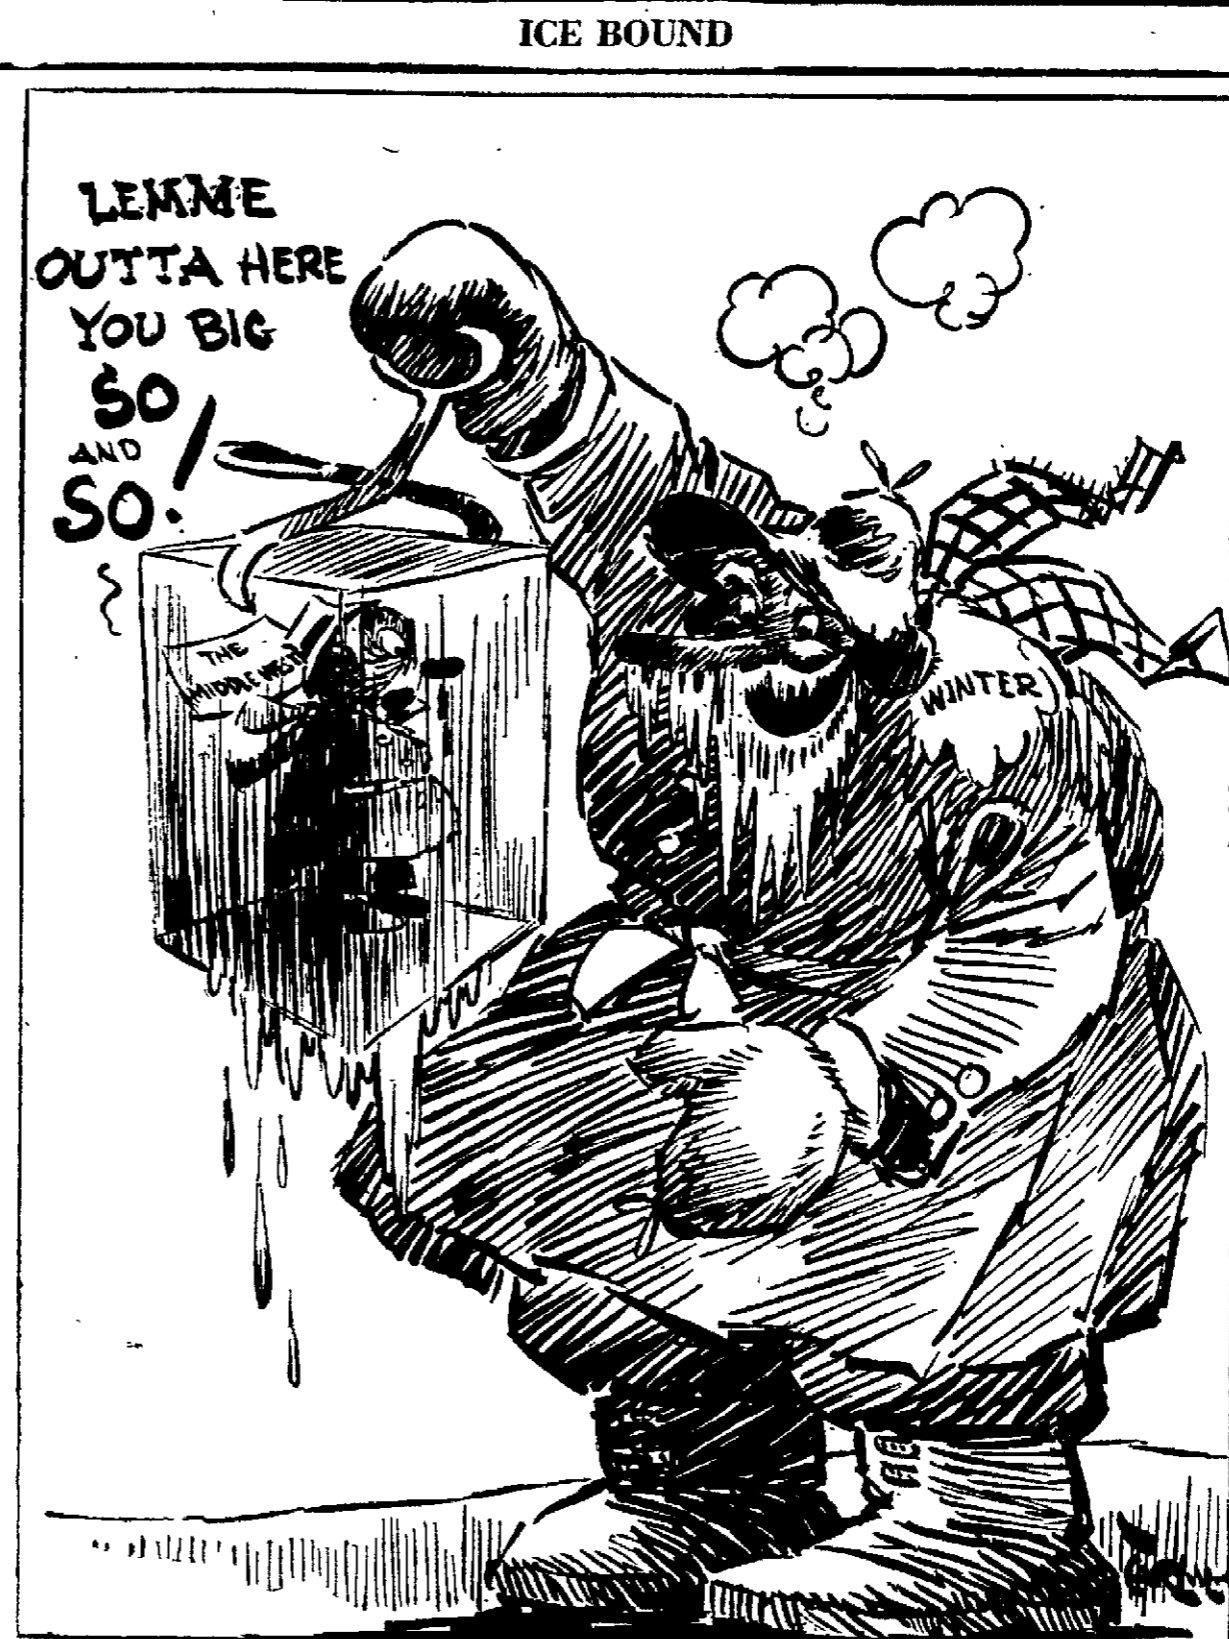

Wednesday, Feb. 14, 1912

A budget calling for expenditure of $213,150 was adopted by the common council at a meeting that morning. The income for the next year will be $25,000 thus reducing the amount to be raised by taxation to $188,150.

George Schmitt, Greenville, was elected president of the Fox River Valley Gunners' Brethren's association at the annual meeting here recently. Other officers elected include John Spears, Shiocton, vice-president; Emory C. Meitz, Greenville, secretary; Dr. O. N. Johnson, Appleton, treasurer. Arrangements for the annual sale on April 10 were discussed by the members.

Governor Woodrow Wilson, Democratic candidate for president, was expected to visit Appleton for an address sometime before the April presidential primary it was announced that day. The president that day signed the proclamation admitting Arizona as a state.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

BEWARE THAT CHILLY FEELING

February is the hottest month of the year and the driest—indoors up north. It is the month when one must beware that chilly feeling. Not the chill of a sudden change from 70 degrees or higher to 30 degrees or lower when you leave the house, office, shop or store to go outdoors. Not the chill of a change of weather. Not the chill of a wind or a draft. The chilly feeling that one must be on guard against is caused by excessive drying out of the air.

Warm dry air in an overheated place gives a sense of chilliness due to excessive evaporation of water from the skin. Too often this sense of chilliness leads the occupant to turn on still more heat, which dries out the air still more and aggravates the condition that is responsible for the discomfort.

Air can hold invisible water vapor in proportion to its temperature. At 70 degrees F. the air can hold nearly five times as much moisture as it can at or below freezing. When outdoor air in the winter time is brought into the house and heated to 68 or 70 it takes moisture from wherever it can get moisture. Unless you provide a substantial amount of moisture the air takes it from the furniture, book bindings, floor boards, any plants or flowers in the house, musical instruments. It takes quantities of moisture from your skin and mucous membranes, and keeps the nose, throat and bronchial tubes more or less irritated. The reaction of the skin and circulation is excessive sweating, and the evaporation of the sweat chills the body too fast.

You can't appreciate the importance of this until you have experienced the comparative comfort of air-conditioning, which means, chiefly, the evaporation of sufficient water in the room. This requires something more than an open pan of water. In order to provide anything like a healthful, comfortable condition of the air it is necessary to evaporate perhaps 15 to 20 gallons of water daily in an eight-room house when the temperature is kept around 68 degrees F. by any kind of artificial heating. The most satisfactory method of conditioning the air is by special equipment built in. But simple humidifiers may be used on any stove, register or radiator which will give a remarkable degree of comfort and health. I have a monograph giving practical suggestions and information about this, and you may have a copy if you will pay the freight. Darn if I'll address your envelope or contribute the postage.

Another thing which will interest all you Scottish readers. A room heated to 68 degrees F. and fairly well humidified by the evaporation of moisture feels more comfortable than a room heated to 73 degrees F. and excessively dried out, as it is bound to be if there is no particular provision for evaporating moisture. Figure out for yourself the saving in fuel. Take my word for it, sir—conditioning saves medicine and doctor bills.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Notes on artists: John LaGatta is a successful illustrator, and his forte is fluffy, ultra-feminine women, but he likes occasionally to illustrate football stories. So does Harold Von Schmidt, who used to play a lot of football himself. Schmidt is considered the best illustrator of western stories in the business.

So famous has been John Held, Jr., for his post war flappers that not many people know he is expert at drawing animals. The late Robert Henri once won enough money at Monte Carlo to finance a three months' art course in Rome. He was also a billiard shark. Floyd Davis is the best sketcher of hill billies that ever came down the pike. However, his reputation as an artist rests on his ability to illustrate diplomatic dinners, court scenes and similar high tea functions.

Gilbert Bundy likes to draw pink, shapely dames, as his full-page illustrations in Esquire infer. He lives in a big house on Riverside Drive in which there is only a drawing board and a studio couch. Among current illustrators who can write as well as draw are Percy Crosby, John Held, Jr., and Russell Patterson. Patterson, aside from his canvases, devotes most of his time to marionettes. He is also writing a column of movie criticism for one of the magazines.

The late Howard Pyle, whose books about Robin Hood and pirates are known to every child, always illustrated his own stories. When you come across Indian stories in the Saturday Evening Post, they are usually illustrated by Matt Clark. Do you remember Coles Phillips, whose hokey ads and pictures of slim, feminine limbs created a definite vogue a decade ago? His son is a sophomore at Ohio State university. Furthermore, he is the heavyweight champion there and can smack down any man on the campus.

Peter Arno, when not satirizing large-bosomed dowagers, studies cordial waters and literature relating to the Civil war. George Petty, whose pictures of pretty women are what art editors desire ardently, is an outdoorsman. He has just returned from an Alaskan big game hunt. Incidentally, he employs his daughter as a model.

Then there is Jon Whitcomb, who usually can be found in his studio near the Beaux Arts apartments. Before he began crowding high excitement into covers for Collier's,

Your Birthday

"AQUARIUS"

If February 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 11 a. m. from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 8 to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 to 9 a. m., from 6 to 8 p. m. and from 10 p. m. until midnight.

On this day it might be well to remember: "Quarrels would not last long, if the fault was only on one side." To get through this day satisfactorily you will have to be liberal in your thoughts, generous in your impulses and friendly in your attitude towards those you contact. The spirit of suspicion is apt to be rampant. Do not let it spoil your day for you. Do not question the motive back of any gracious attention you may receive, for a kindly sentiment probably will inspire it.

"Try to force anyone to do something against his will, is apt to be one of the greatest mistakes that can be made this day. The spirit of independence will dominate the average person, causing them to resent being dictated to. Married and engaged couples, as well as those whose affection is centered upon some one person, should avoid arguing just for the reason that they feel in the humor of bandying words."

If a woman and February 11 is your birthday the chances are you have a very romantic disposition, a vivid imagination and an artistic soul. Aquarians born on this date, generally are devoted to their family and friends. You are apt to think of others before thinking of yourself. Be careful you do not sacrifice your own interests foolishly. Now, or later on, you may have considerable money, so it is important that you learn to be thrifty, as well how to spend and give judiciously. This day may bring you a number of agreeable surprises. As a poet, author, teacher, actress or broker you may do surprisingly well. Home life ought to have a strong appeal for you, so you should be far happier married, than single.

The child born on February 11, quite early in its teens, may give ample evidence as to what type of work or career it is best qualified to take up. This youngster ought to have a mind of its own, a vast amount of determination and plenty of "pep."

If a man and February 11 is your natal day, if you are cheerful and optimistic you will be able to accomplish wonders. As an engineer, chemist, contractor, politician, journalist or actor you may find yourself to be a notable personality.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—If the president is searching for revolutionary legislation to press through congress he is overlooking a good bet in the Goldsborough bill.

Representative Thomas Alan Goldsborough of Maryland, a large, blond, baldish person, arose during one of those lulls in the house when lengthy speeches are allowed. He had things on his mind. He proposed an inverted sales tax.

Unaccustomed as the house was to such public speaking, it sat bolt upright. At the mere mention of sales tax the house hecklers rise. Those are fighting words. But this was an inverted sales tax. Like the street peddler who first lures customers to his stand by operating a miniature clothes wringer that prints dollar bills, Goldsborough just mentioned "inverted sales tax" and then went into his song and dance. He read extracts from authorities ancient and modern to prove that what the country needs most is more money controlled by its people and less by its banks. The inverted sales tax was part of the way.

The Inversion Idea

Under an inverted sales tax, Goldsborough explained, you don't pay a tax, you get one. He proposed starting it at 25 per cent. For every dollar you spend, you get a 25 per cent take-off. Actually it wouldn't work out exactly that way. The retailer instead would be required to cut the price 25 per cent, then go to the bank with a statement as to how much the cuts totaled. He would collect actual cash from the bank and the banker could claim a corresponding amount from the United States treasury. (It would get back to the treasury, of course.)

The treasury wouldn't issue him cash, just certificates he could exchange with other banks in settling inter-bank indebtedness. Between this step and what finally is coming are many steps. The net result would be to limit banks to lending only the actual amount of deposits on hand instead of being able to lend as high as 10 times as much through a system of rediscounting. But it wouldn't cause inflation for banks to issue so much currency to retailers for cutting prices? No, says Goldsborough. That could be stopped by manipulating the discount rate and by adjusting the inverted sales tax. The net result would be money flowed around too freely.

Who could decide when money was going around too freely? He had that stopped too. A credit commission would handle that job. We could go on endlessly about this bill. Mr. Goldsborough could, too.

Death Deives

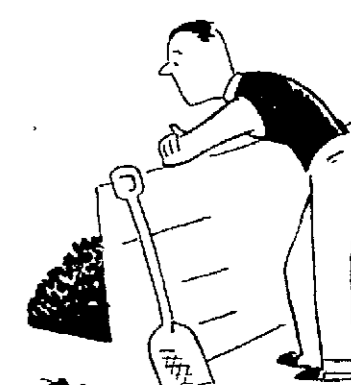

But there is another equally important bill before the congress, to streamline federal executions. Since 1790 it has been the federal custom to hang its condemned men. A new bill, introduced by Senator Ashurst of Arizona at the request of the justice department, would permit execution of federal prisoners in the manner in use by the state where the crime was committed.

One of the prompting incidents back of the measure was the necessity for building a scaffold in Arizona to hang an Indian while a business-like, nearby lethal gas chamber was idle.

FUTURE FARM CROPS

Lincoln, Neb.—(7)—"Tailor-made" crops, super baby beeves, batteries of silos, television and autogiros will play a part in the farm of the future in the opinion of Prof. H. J. Gramlich of the Nebraska agricultural college.

He visualizes those conveniences for the average farmer in 1962. Soil conservation will be commonplace, he says, and the university will become a radio distribution plant sending unlimited knowledge throughout the year.

Court Proposals Long Hinted at National Capital

Opposition Thus Far Not Strong Enough to Endanger Final O. K.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — President Roosevelt's plan to "pack" the supreme court is encountering considerable opposition, but not enough to endanger passage. What the next two weeks may bring in the way of crystallized opposition may revise this appraisal.

The president is facing two separate lines of opposition — those who think the plan itself without merit as a means of accomplishing the objectives of Mr. Roosevelt, and those who think the issue is of such transcendent importance that the president should have given the American people during the recent campaign an outline of his program.

Did the president have the plan in mind before election last November? Was it decided upon only after the election? Was there any discussion about it among the members of the platform committee of the Democratic national convention?

These questions are being asked now, and one Democratic senator is authority for the statement that Mr. Roosevelt discussed the whole plan with advisers last spring and that the scheme was shelved because of a belief that it would be misunderstood during the campaign.

Landon's Question
Governor Landon, the Republican nominee, in his Madison Square garden speech, just before the close of the campaign, raised the following question:

"And what are the intentions of the president with respect to the constitution? Does he believe an amendment will be submitted to the people, or will he attempt to get around the constitution by tampering with the supreme court? The answer is 'no one can be sure.'"

Mr. Roosevelt made no comment on Mr. Landon's statement nor was there any mention by the president at any other time during the campaign of any plan to enlarge the supreme court membership. Does this constitute a breach of contract with the voters who believed that his silence on the issue meant that he would not touch it, or were they who voted for him wrong in their assumption that Mr. Roosevelt would be confined in his second term only to issues he had discussed in the campaign or to that which had been covered in the Democratic platform adopted in Philadelphia?

Move Not Surprise

There is much more merit in the contention that the people who believed Mr. Roosevelt would not tamper with the supreme court overlooked many significant items in the newspapers, for there were many plain indications of Mr. Roosevelt's desires to circumvent the constitution. His interview with the press just after the N.E.A. was invalidated by a unanimous decision of the supreme court, coupled with the general sentiment among his brain trust advisers, was such that the president's move can hardly be called a surprise except in the exact form in which he presented it.

Thus, this correspondent, on Jan. 23, 1936, reported the way the administration advisers were working toward the making out of a case about alleged congestion of the business of the supreme court as an excuse for enlarging the court. Here is an excerpt from that particular dispatch, a year ago January, referring to various attacks on the supreme court by the administration:

No New Trend

"The proposal to take away from the lower federal courts any rights to pass on the validity of acts of congress is a different sort of attack on the supreme court, but not so discernible to the naked eye. The obvious purpose of the New Dealers is to load on the supreme court so much work through granting appellate jurisdiction to the highest court that it might be necessary to increase the court by three or even nine more justices to take care of the work done by about ninety federal courts."

"It is being said in many quarters that the New Deal would welcome such a contingency because it would give Mr. Roosevelt an opportunity to appoint justices who agreed with his philosophy of politics and government. Perhaps a flank attack on the high court by depriving lower courts of jurisdiction is the reason for the abandonment of the idea of modifying the constitution."

"To reverse the decisions of the supreme court by 'packing' its membership, is of course, theoretically an easier thing to accomplish than to amend the constitution. Usurpation is a quicker method than revision by amendment. But unfortunately 'packing' of the court has been tried before and it is questionable whether public opinion will ever sanction such a subterfuge."

Noticed Year Ago

The quotations given here to show that the administration's purposes were not entirely unnoticed by the press and that as long as a year ago the probabilities of "packing" the court were being discussed in the national capital. Under the circumstances, the contention that Mr. Roosevelt sprung a surprise on his supporters is justified only if the supporters chose to ignore the plain hand-writing on the wall, the comments informal and otherwise made to the press from time to time at the White House about the supreme court, and the constant barrage of criticism about the membership of the court which has been emanating from administration headquarters.

The slogan of the present administration for many months has been "There's nothing really wrong with the constitution, but only with the court." Hence, the plan to change the membership of the court by one plan or another is in line with the expressed objectives of administration leaders. The fact that the country refused to take seriously the warnings of Mr. Landon and the Republicans on this point is being considered by New Dealers as justification for the present course of the president. Unfortunately from a New Deal standpoint, the Democrats who did trust the Roosevelt leadership not to tamper with the supreme court are now making themselves vocal. Various members of congress report that a large part of the messages they are receiving in protest against the proposal to enlarge the supreme court comes from persons who supported Mr. Roosevelt in the last campaign. (Copyright, 1937)

Great War Aided Jews In Palestine

“UNDOUBTEDLY the remarkable growth of Jewish activity for the rebuilding of the National Home in Palestine within the three or four post-war years was a consequence of the Great War,” said Mrs. Phil Jacobson in a paper on “Post-War Palestine” at the meeting of Appleton chapter of Hadassah, National Jewish Women’s society, Tuesday afternoon in Appleton Womans club.

“The introduction of the two modern civilizing influences of Great Britain and the idealistic but energetic and determined Jews led to the development that is making in Palestine a significant experiment for all the world to watch and perhaps use as an example,” she continued.

Supports Zionism Publicly and with the consent of the allied powers Great Britain called the whole world to witness her declaration in support of Zionism, said Mrs. Jacobson, for on Nov. 17, 1917, Mr. Balfour conveyed to Lord Rothschild on behalf of the Zionist Federation the declaration that “His Majesty’s government view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country.”

The mandate embodying the proposal of the Zionist Organization and the terms of the Balfour declaration was not finally approved until July 24, 1922, and became formally operative Sept. 29, 1923, Mrs. Jacobson continued, adding that it expressly gives recognition to the historical connection of the Jewish people with Palestine and to the grounds for reconstituting their national home in that country.

Outline Steps The speaker outlined the early steps in organization and the laws governing immigration to Palestine, and stated that by a decade after the World War more than 100,000 Jews had entered Palestine, 25 per cent of whom were the Chazutim who made tremendous strides in agricultural colonization by the aid of the national funds collected from Jews throughout the world, the Jewish National Fund and Keren Hayesod or Foundation fund. Before the war there was but inconsiderable industrial development in Palestine, she continued, but shortly after the war many new enterprises sprang up, most of them small ones, but in September, 1921, the British administration granted the Rutenberg concession for the utilization of the waters of the Jordan and Yarmuk rivers to supply electric light and power.

The British administration was responsible for bringing order into the economic state of the country at the end of the war, she added, and the railway system was restored and developed, telephone service was made available, the administration of justice, the police system and finance were reorganized and improved, new roads were built.

Expands service The work of the Hadassah Medical Organization in post-war Palestine which was the outgrowth of the American Zionist Medical unit was discussed by the speaker who explained that the organization expanded its health service into the lines it has followed since. It instituted medical and sanitary services in the immigrant camps and Jewish colonies, medical inspection in the Jewish schools, built up its hospital, clinic and laboratory services and its nurses’ training school, she said. Mrs. Jacobson also read excerpts from “Footprints in Palestine” by Madeleine S. Miller and from Asia magazine and Foreign News.

Plan Program for Local Observance of World Day Of Prayer Next Friday

THOU art the Christ, the Son of the Living God" is the theme around which the program for the World Day of Prayer is being built this year all over the world as well as in Appleton, the local observance of which will be held Friday afternoon at First Methodist Episcopal church. This year's program was written by Miss Mabel Shaw, founder of the Livingstone Memorial Girls' Boarding school at Mbereshi, Kawamba, Northern Rhodesia, Africa.

In 1920 the first Friday of Lent was selected for the Day of Prayer for Missions when many church women of various denominations in Canada and the United States joined in common prayer. The theme was "The World to Christ We Bring," and the call was for meetings to be held "in cities, towns and villages, morning, noon or in the evening to ask God's mercy upon the troubled and confused nations." The thought of a day of prayer spread until at the request of far away friends, the World Day of Prayer was first observed in 1927.

Principal Speaker. Miss Bernice N. Copeland, Milwaukee, secretary of the Milwaukee Y. W. C. A. in charge of colored work department, will be the principal speaker for the service in Appleton, her subject to be "A Negro Thinks Aloud." Appleton High school choir under the direction of A. A. Glockzin will sing.

Today's Hand Had Expert In Hot Water for Change

(Copyright, 1937, By Elv Culbertson)

An expert friend of mine submits today's hand as one of the most harrowing experiences he has had at the bridge table in a good long time. Knowing experts as intimately as I do, I am able to discount his weeping and wailing and partner accusation down to the stage where they properly belong, but the net result still does not leave a pretty picture.

It all came about through the partner's stubborn disregard of a bidding convention.

South, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

♣ 10	♣ 9	♣ 8	♣ 7	♣ 6	♣ 5	♣ 4	♣ 3

The bidding:

South West North East

1 no trump Double Pass Pass

West probably gloated inwardly about the heavy penalty he was about to mete on the hapless declarer. The king won, and the jack of clubs knocked out West's ace. His confidence somewhat shaken on sight of the dummy, West could see nothing better to do than clear the spade suit, even daring to hope that the jack would drop on his ace.

When it didn't, he continued with the ten spot, and that was the end of the story as far as he was concerned. Declarer won, and rattled off five club tricks, discarding his own three hearts on the last rounds.

Coming down to four cards, West felt the inexorable squeeze at work on him. South having discarded the heart king, dummy's jack would become high if he (West) were to let go the ace, and therefore he reluctantly parted with one of his diamonds. But this gave him the relief for now declarer cashed the diamond king and ran off the other three diamonds for a grand total of eleven tricks, four over contract.

It is true that North-South did not go game, since their one no trump doubled gave them only 80 points below the line, but the 800 points above in extra tricks was a satisfying compensation.

West demanded, in no uncertain terms, how East had dared to leave him in a take-out double of one no trump without as much as a ten in his hand. East, a picture of injured innocence, answered that that had been the very reason for his leaving in the fact that he had been so weak he didn't dare bid! With such an answer, West was rendered speechless.

This is not the first time that I have heard that inane reason given for a criminal action at bridge. It is apparently difficult to convince certain players that the weaker their hand, the more vital that they respond to a take-out double.

West could not have been severely punished at the two-spade bid to which he would have gone over East's proper response of two hearts; in fact, neither North nor South could have doubled two spades in safety, and also it was highly unlikely that North-South would actually have bid for a game if East-West's bidding had gone properly.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question: In a tournament, should a player be penalized for going from one table to another, comparing scores?

Answer: Yes, the offender should be penalized two points, sometimes more.

Weapons of War

III—GUNPOWDER AND FIREARMS

Gunpowder, or something like it, was known in Asia more than 2,000 years ago. Ancient records tell of explosives used in both China and India. One record of a city in India says:

French riflemen in World War

"The men in it do not come out in the field to fight. They overthrow their enemies with thunderbolts shot from their walls."

At a later time an explosive called "Greek fire" came into use in Asia Minor and other lands around the eastern end of the Mediterranean sea. The exact nature of Greek fire is not known, but it is believed to have contained sulphur, naphtha and quicklime. Sometimes the records call it "wet fire" or "sea fire." We are told that at one time it was used to destroy a Saracen fleet.

Close to seven centuries ago, an English friar named Roger Bacon wrote a book in which he told how to make an explosive which contained saltpeter, the most important part of gunpowder. Some persons have called Bacon the "inventor" of gunpowder, but most likely he copied the facts about making it from an old manuscript.

Wide-mouthed cannon were made in Italy in the year 1326, and 20 years later gunpowder was employed by the English in the Battle of Crecy, which was fought in northern France. The crude cannon seem to have done little real damage, but the loud noise filled the French with fear.

Besides the large cannon, early soldiers sometimes used "hand-cannons." These were long iron barrels, loaded with powder and iron balls or "bullets."

Some hand-cannons were fired from the hip, but many were fitted with wooden "stocks" which could be rested against the shoulder. In this way the old "arquebus" or "musket" came into being.

For a long time the custom was to keep a wick burning near the rear end of the barrel. This supplied flame to place near the "touch hole" and make the powder explode.

Later the flint-lock gun was invented, and it was in common use until about the year 1850. When the trigger was pulled, flint and steel struck together. The sparks set off the charge of powder. At least that was supposed to happen. Often the flint-locks missed fire.

During the past century, rifles of many kinds and sizes have been made. The reason for the name "rifle" is the fact that the inside of the barrel is grooved or "rifled."

The spiral groove makes the bullet turn around, and this gives greater speed. Instead of the old-time round ball, a bullet is used which is longer than it is wide.

Teach Children to Have Fun in Variable Weather

BY ANGELO PATRI

Children can have great fun with the weather. It can be a companion and playfellow. The most healthful imaginable. This can be readily established in any child's life simply by allowing him to get out and enjoy what's going on in the sky and in the air and under his feet.

The wind is a great playfellow. It comes rushing down from the clear clean heights to renew the vigor of earth, send fresh draughts of air into the lungs of the children and the plants and the animals. Fresh air is food for all growing things. Let them enjoy the tang and the sparkle of it on windy days. Tie down their hats, button them into their coats and send them out for an airing and a race with the speeding wind.

Rain is wholesome. There is nothing like a misty morning to brighten the color in a child's skin, set the sparkle in his eyes and the crisp in his hair. It won't hurt him. Show him the beauty of wet stones. It is on a misty morning they show their colors and textures best. Notice the tree trunks, how much lovelier is their color in the wet. And the foliage beaded with jewels, edged in silver, shining and sweetly perfumed. Rain is lovely, and children need to enjoy it as it falls on their faces and freshens them as it does the flowers and the birds, especially rushes and reeds and ducks and geese.

Nothing is so lovely as a snow-storm. When the snow falls softly and the children slip along, overcoats, shod with rubber, they are alert and alive in the stillness of earth. Now they hear clearly the voice of a chickadee, the honk of a wild goose flying high and fast, belated for some reason beyond his season. The feeling, sounds and sights of a snow-storm that falls gently to cover the bareness of winter's face are experiences of beauty no child should miss.

Rain, snow, wind and weather

all together should hold no terrors for children or their mothers. Dressed for the occasion they can go out and get the best there is out of it. Getting wet hurts nobody. Staying wet and sitting still is not good at all, but why do that? Keep moving in the wet, change when home is reached, and well-being fills both mind and body. The storm excites and stimulates the children, and only good can come to them out of it if they are properly prepared for it and properly cared for afterward. It is a mistake to keep

Slim Waist Is Reward Of Exercise

BY ELSIE PIERCE

A WAISTLINE is another one of those precious possessions that we humans do not miss until we've lost it. We allow it to expand and thicken. Then we don't look as girlish and don't wear clothes nearly so well as we did with the waistline.

Speaking of clothes, I was looking through an album recently at the lines we wore less than ten years ago—the straight up and down line with an artificial waistline or a belt at any rate, somewhere below the hips. Contrast these lines with the lines of today and you'll agree that one of the nicest things about the latter is the fact that fashion places the waistline where it naturally is.

Bending and Twisting

Frankly, what would you do for a waistline? The simple bending and twisting exercises that we did as children in school are still just as effective. They're death on the spare tire and amirships. They keep a waistline trim and svelte.

Stretching is fine for that smooth young line, that flatness of abdomen. You can do your stretching exercises in bed every morning before arising. Stretch arms overhead, stretch upper trunk up and toes way down as though upper and lower trunk were having a tug of war right at the waistline.

Our screen and stage stars have special exercises for the waist. The majority prefer the bending to the floor, and rotating the trunk from the waist. This one—a favorite of an opera star—is a little difficult, but once you master it, you'll agree that it's worth bending backward in order to acquire a waistline.

Stand twelve inches from the wall with your back to it. Lean over backward until your hands touch the wall and climb your way down the wall until the hands are touching the floor and you are bent over backwards in an arc. Feel the pull at the waist and abdominal muscles.

When you walk, make a conscious effort to hold the abdomen in. Ditto when standing or sitting. All that helps to define the waistline. If you're a sportsman there's nothing grander than golf, tennis and bowling for a waistline.

My Neighbor Says—

When making sardine sandwiches, chop a pickle into the sardine paste. You will find this combination very much to your liking.

When boiling ham, salt beef or tongue which is to be served cold, you should leave the meat in the liquor until it is cold. The flavor is very much improved.

To keep celery crisp, thoroughly wash it and cut for serving. Place in a cheesecloth bag and store in a cold place.

Children home because it threatens rain or snow or the wind blows unless they are definitely ill. Then they must wait and get out the very first day they are able.

The study of the weather is fascinating for the older children. A thermometer, a barometer, a globe, a weather map in the newspaper, and there is a world of interest opened to the observant child. He can follow the fate of the crops, the fortunes of the summer resorts, the trials of the ships at sea. He can adventure over the world, staying close to his own little corner of maps and instruments. He can feel the pulse of the world and find that his own nests with it in time and tune of the weather. Weather is the face time bears. Let the children know it generously.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the health and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

Prepare Child for Danger In World, Not to Shun it

BY DOROTHY DIX

We hear so many hair-raising tales about the goings on of modern youth that it is no wonder that many parents get into a blind panic which makes them believe that the only way in which they can protect their children is to keep them under lock and key and not let them have any more liberty than if they were incarcerated in a cell.

Of course, the fathers and mothers who take the home-jail method of keeping their sons and daughters—unspotted, from the world are actuated by the best of motives. They are trying to keep them safe. They are determined that their girls shall not be the wild creatures that they see tearing around with boys in high-powered cars, drinking too many cocktails, going to places of which their parents have never heard and coming home at an hour in the morning which gives the neighbors plenty to talk about.

So we have the parents whose grown daughters have not one vestige of personal freedom. They are never permitted to have any more association with the opposite sex than if every man were a leper. They are not allowed to have a date or to have a boy call on them at home. They may not go to a movie with a lad or to any place of amusement unless they are escorted by Papa. They are cut out of all of the fun that other girls have, and all that they can do is to look on wistfully at life through the bars that their parents have erected around them. That the tyranny from which they suffer is the tyranny of love does not make it easier to bear, nor is their victims less resentful of it.

Now we all recognize that young girls do need to be safeguarded. They do need their parents' watchful eyes and restraining hands upon them, but I do not think that it is possible for fathers and mothers to make a greater mistake than to being too strict with their daughters and depriving them of all the privileges that the other girls have.

To begin with it robs them of the joy that belongs to their time of life. How can they play if they are not permitted to have any playmates, nor to take part in any of the games that the other boys and girls are playing? Father and Mother may think sitting at home with them and reading an improving book is all the diversion that 16 or 18 or 20 requires, but the girls know better. Also, it queers a girl never to be able to run with the gang. And so the girl whose parents segregate her from her fellows is left high and dry, stranded by her own fireside.

Just what the parents who will never let their daughters have a date or a boy come to the house think they are protecting her from, it is hard to say. If they imagine that because they tell her that she must never look at a lad or think about one that she is oblivious of the male species, they are fooling themselves. From the time of Mother Eve every woman has hankered after forbidden fruit, and girls are so boy-crazy as the ones who have never been permitted to have a boy friend.

Parents not only lessen their daughters' chances of marrying by preventing them from having any association with men until they are so old they have lost their complexions and their teeth, but they also handicap them in their choice of husbands. For how can a girl who knows no more of the habits and ways of men than she does of those of any other wild animal, know what points one should have to make a good husband? How can she have the common sense of making mistakes if they never let a boy cross their threshold?

But the main point for the overly strict parents to consider is that keeping girls in bondage nowadays is just something that can't be done. Youth will be served. Girls are going to have their dates, their boy friends, their good times. They would rather have them decently and openly with mother and father sympathizing and enjoying their fun, but if mother and father drive them with too tight a rein they simply bolt.

Lock the door and they climb out of the window. The boys whom they can't receive at home they

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only a makeshift. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to do the job. They stimulate the liver, keep it healthy and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Barber Industry Reflects Better Times in State

Several Factors Credited For Bringing Improved Conditions

Madison—Return of better times is reflected in the barber industry in Wisconsin, according to the annual reports of inspectors for the barber division of the state board of health.

Several factors are credited by Charles E. Mullen, division supervisor, with bringing about improved conditions among the barbers. He cites the new barber law, effective since October, 1935, the barber code of the state trade practice commission, and the addition of courses in barber science to the curricula of vocational schools, as forces that are combining with improved general business conditions to brighten the situation of the Wisconsin barber.

Personnel of the state barber industry last year showed 5,786 master barbers, 180 journeymen, 112 apprentices and 45 students licensed by the state board of health. Shop manager licenses, as required by the new state law, were issued to 3,320 master barbers last year.

The exacting nature of the Wisconsin license requirements is reflected in the fact that of 137 applicants examined in the course of eight examinations conducted last year, only 45 passed, Mullen pointed out.

"The state barber code, administered under the state trade practice commission, has undoubtedly aided the barbers in maintaining regulations governing prices, wages and maximum hours of labor," he stated.

Three field men of the barber division, state board of health, made 4,698 shop inspections in 2,035 visits to Wisconsin communities during 1936. In enforcing the sanitary code they secured 20 warrants leading to court action, and closed five shops, the division records show.

State Commission to Conduct 5 Hearings

The hearings will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Flood Relief Work Showed Human Race at Its Best

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Chicago—A letter from an Indiana woman protests that the generosity and personal sacrifice of the river-town people in housing and feeding the unfortunate washouts of the Ohio river flood have been insufficiently recognized.

It seems to me that this phase of the disaster was pretty well covered but perhaps it wasn't. If not it should be reported that the spirit of the people was very noble.

The women of the local Red Cross chapters, just ordinary women of the kind whom the census takers put down as housewife, turned to and cooked and served meals by hand to anyone who crawled off a log and about the only credential that a human being needed was an appetite, of which there was no lack. They would rig up board tables on carpenter's horses in the basement of the courthouse if it were high and dry or in the Sunday school room of the church and start putting out as soon as the refugees hit town.

In some places the washouts were quartered in empty store buildings of courtyards but more were taken into private homes and given some kind of shake-down and it just seemed to be taken for granted that anyone who had a dry house would shelter as many people as it was possible to crowd in.

The doctors, too, sailed in and worked around the clock for there were many bad colds and quite a lot of pneumonia and there was a personal touch in all the relief work which showed the human race at its best.

Interesting to Note Kindness to Suffering

It was interesting to observe this indiscriminate kindness and zeal to relieve want and suffering because in other times many of these people had shown themselves capable of the most malignant cussedness toward their fellow-men.

Southern Indiana, around Evansville, was the point of infection of the Ku Klux Klan which was fascism at its worst and there are people engaged in the most trying relief work day and night for about a week who formerly had stayed up nights scheming ways to gang up on their neighbors socially and economically and stewing in the smelly juice of hatred.

Of course the Klan was a racket and some people were more or less forced into it because life got pretty lonesome for those who didn't belong. But hatred and bad sportsmanship were the keynote of the Klan and there wasn't a trace of human kindness or mercy anywhere in the whole career of the movement.

It developed into a great system of snooping, espionage, anonymous threats and night-riding, always with the odds shamefully against the victim and it would be comfort to put it down to ignorance but for the fact that Indiana makes quite an important business of squirreling education over the young. It finally flopped when the leaders of a movement which claimed to revere and protect American womanhood were convicted of gang-rape of a young woman who was then left to die.

Schedule Inquest In Fatal Accident

Authorities to Seek Cause Of Crash in Which Two Women Died

An inquest in the deaths of Mrs. Harvey Bessett and Mrs. Earl Hooyman, route 1, Shiocton, who were killed in a traffic accident at Black Creek Saturday, will be resumed at Black Creek at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon under the direction of Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, Outagamie county coroner.

The two women were killed when a car driven by Bessett and a bakery truck driven by Carl Martin, Green Bay, collided on an icy curve of Highway 54 at the east village limits. Four other persons were injured in the accident.

A jury was impaneled shortly after the accident but the inquest was adjourned after the jurors viewed the bodies and the scene of the crash.

Pupils Build Igloo As They Study Alaska

Children mill about the large igloo in Miss Genevieve Thullen's second grade room at Edison school as they study about the country and learn how the Eskimos live. Appearance of an entire Eskimo village will be completed when the children complete a large frieze and place this back of the igloo. The frieze will show other igloos and icebergs in the distance.

Although each pupil is preparing a booklet of Alaska, they combine in writing poems for their language work. A life size Eskimo child and dog have been completed and occupy places of honor ahead of the igloo.

Pupils Draw Pictures Of Favorite Character

Pictures of characters appearing in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," the play recently sponsored by the Edison School Parent Teachers association at Lawrence Memorial chapel have been completed by second graders at the Edison school. Children who did not attend the production are drawing pictures of their favorite movie stars.

Students are also making a study of mail service and have traced its history through means of transportation which include pony express, wagon, dog teams, mail trains, stage coaches, mail trucks, postmen and airplanes.

Action on poor claims against the county was taken at a meeting of the county poor committee at the courthouse Tuesday. The committee is headed by Supervisor Martin Williams, Combined Locks.

Issue Warning on Abuses in Sale of Infected Cattle

Owner Responsible for Salvage Statement for Indemnity Payments

A warning to farmers against irregularities "which might be termed abuses in marketing Bang's disease reactors" is made by Dr. J. S. Haas of the federal bureau of animal husbandry in a report received by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

"Certain cattle buyers are purchasing Bang's disease reactors outright from owners at less than market value and selling them at a profit," Dr. Haas asserted. "This is not condoned, as it is contrary to law, and it puts the cattle owner in a peculiar and untenable position, wherein he claims indemnity from the federal government. Such a procedure necessarily involves a false certification regarding the value of the animal because the dealer's profit is not shown."

"The federal Bang regulations provide that after the expense of marketing a reactor is deducted from the gross salvage, the net salvage is subtracted from the appraised valuation in order to determine the amount of indemnity to be paid the owner," he pointed out. "The owner certifies that 'that is all the money I have received or will receive,' which, under the method just explained is an untruth."

"The obligation of furnishing the federal department the necessary salvage statement and post-mortem report, according to law, rests with the owner," he stressed. "Due to the irregularity of marketing, the owner in many instances, has been unable to do this, which has resulted in his loss of indemnity."

C. A. Holla, Clintonville, was arrested Monday by the sheriff's department on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses from Frank Duff of Waupaca. TRY THIS WAY TO QUICKLY RELIEVE ECZEMA ITCHING

If your skin is broken out with "hives" or "weeping" eczema, you want to relieve the intolerable itching and burning as quickly as possible. Resinol Ointment does this and also combats the irritation caused by eczema—its only base being ideal for penetrating the outer layers of the skin and securing deeper action.

Wash the affected parts with warm water and Resinol Soap. It is especially suited to tender skin—soaps containing too much alkali may irritate. After washing off scales and crusts, pat dry with a soft cloth. Do not rub.

Apply a thin layer of Resinol Ointment, letting it remain for several hours. Apply again liberally at bedtime leaving on all night. The longer Resinol is in contact with the skin, the more good it does.

Buy Resinol Soap and Ointment in any drug store. Samples free. Write Resinol, Dept. 26, Baltimore, Md.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Seizure of the Court

It should be noted that at no point in his carefully drafted message on the judiciary does the President say clearly what he is proposing to do to the Supreme Court.

That is contained in the bill which accompanies the message, and only from the bill does one learn that the President is asking for the power either to oust six justices and replace them with his own appointees, or to add six justices of his own and thus make it reasonably sure that there will be a majority who think as he does. Mr. Roosevelt might well have shrunk from a direct avowal of the meaning of this proposal. Its audacity is without parallel in American history. For while other Presidents have quarreled with the court, no president has ever dreamed of asking for the personal power to remake the court to suit himself.

In the light of this demand for the personal power to oust or to another two-thirds of the existing court, the reasons advanced by the president can only be described as misleading. His message is an able argument for many necessary reforms, including the infusion of younger men into the judicial system. Few will find any serious objection to the argument. But unfortunately the argument does not deal with the central proposal, in fact it evades it and hides it.

Central Proposal Aimed at Constitutional Revision

The central proposal is aimed not at judicial reform but at constitutional revision. For the fact is that the court as now constituted does not interpret the Constitution as Mr. Roosevelt wishes it to be interpreted, and what he is asking for is the power to create a new court which will conform to his will. Had Mr. Roosevelt's proposal been made by a President whose plans did not conflict with the Constitution, it would be an attractive reform. Had Mr. Roosevelt made the proposal when there were not six justices over seventy, the proposal would be what the message says it is: a suggestion for invigorating the judiciary to expedite and modernize the administration of justice.

But in view of the fact that Mr. Roosevelt's plans have been in violent collision with the constitution as interpreted by this court, in view of the fact that six justices happen to be over seventy, and that at least five of these six differ fundamentally with Mr. Roosevelt, this is no proposal for the kind of judicial reform which the message talks about. This is a bloodless coup d'etat which strikes a deadly blow at the vital center of constitutional democracy.

Work Office Finds Jobs for Nineteen

Thirteen Men and Five Women Placed in Last Week

Thirteen men and six women were given jobs last week through the Wisconsin State Employment Service bureau, according to Fred R. Gehrke, manager.

Five women were placed in domestic and personal service and one in wholesale groceries and food business.

Of the men placements six were given jobs in public building and construction, two in railroad transportation and one each in private building and construction, wholesale groceries and food business, department store, cleaning and pressing shop and auto accessories store.

The employment service does not lay any claim to being the complete solution for the unemployment problem. Manager Gehrke said in discussing the work of the bureau. It does help matters by bringing together the jobless men and the manless job wherever openings and men that fit them are called to its attention.

The purpose of the bureau, he explained, is to conduct a modern, efficient system of public employment for the mutual benefit of employers and those seeking work. In its own sphere it performs a public service as important to a community as public health clinics and schools.

He urged employers to keep in contact with the office for men when jobs are open.

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
APPLETON High school basketball team remained tied with Oshkosh for first place in the Fox River Valley conference last night when the Terrors defeated Fond du Lac at Fondy, 33 to 29, while Oshkosh was beating Green Bay West, 33 to 28.

Appleton seldom has come closer to losing a game than last night, and if the Terrors hadn't been able to capitalize on Fond du Lac's desire to win and fouls which resulted from its over-enthusiasm, the game would have gone on the wrong side of the ledger due to a combination of circumstances.

Two of the circumstances were a couple of "hot" cagers on the Cardinal squad. One of the youngsters was Lehner, a forward, who swished three of as fine shots as you'll ever see during the third quarter to bring the Cards back into the game after trailing 18 to 6 at the half.

Then in the fourth quarter, the circumstances appeared in the form of a chap named Wilderman who, if Lehner was hot and sinking fine shots was a miracle man and sinking impossible shots. Wilderman dumped five buckets during the stanza, sinking almost every attempt and from any place on the floor. There just wasn't any stopping him—unless one used a gun.

Basket Defective
The third circumstance was Appleton's inability to score consistently during the last half because it was forced to use a defective basket—which Fond du Lac, incidentally, found so elusive in the first half.

The hoop tilted at a downward angle from numerous weldings and batterings and, while it was noticed by officials, coaches and everyone else, nothing could be done about it. A shot played on the bounding board instead of caroming against the edge of the hoop and downward, slipped off the top and missed. Even free throws had to be dropped directly through the rim or they wouldn't behave.

The game opened rather slowly with the teams feeling out each other and the quarter ended 5-all. Barney Meyers was in the contest for Appleton as the second quarter started and after Appleton had taken an 8 to 6 lead Barney got underway and scored four goals, three on pivots and one on a followup, and Slaters got one goal to give Appleton a nice 18 to 6 lead at the half. Fond du Lac had scored two buckets and two free throws. Its attempts at the hoop all were from out on the court except one.

And then came the second half. Appleton started play with a basket to lead 20 to 6 and missed several easy tries. Suddenly Lehner tossed one at the hoop and it swished in. Bailey followed with one of Appleton's many misses but when Lehner clicked, Miller did likewise and Lehner got his third bucket Appleton led only 22 to 14. The teams each got free throws and Kintworth gave Fond du Lac a bucket and the quarter ended 23 to 17 for Appleton. Fondy had made 11 points to 5 for Appleton!

Then Came Wilderman!
Wilderman, guard, opened the scoring for Fond du Lac in the fourth period with a goal which put Appleton followers on the edge of their seats for it made the score 23 to 19 for the Terrors and things looked exceedingly bad. Wilderman then graciously missed two free throws and Sellers came through with two for Appleton.

Wilderman's long shot cut the margin to 25 to 21 and Sellers came back with a bucket for Appleton. McKee's was hacked while trying for a shot and made two gift shots which, it was obvious, was the only kind of shot Appleton could make. Wilderman heaved another long one and the score was 29 to 25 for Appleton but when Lehner got a free throw the margin was only 29 to 26 with 2 minutes and 6 seconds to play and Fond du Lac folks screaming for a kill.

About the coolest folks in the place, however, were members of the Terror squad and whenever they got the ball they kept moving in for another try. Fondy, in its zeal, was getting over-anxious, and was fouling. Jack Bowers was fouled while shooting and made good on two tries and Appleton's lead was boosted to 31 to 26. Sellers then got a free throw but this pesky Wilderman fellow followed up a shot and the Terror lead was

NEENAH HIGH THIRD IN N. E. W. CAGE RACE

Neenah High school basketball team will go after its fifth Northeastern Wisconsin conference victory Friday night when it meets New London at New London. The Red Rockets are in third place in the standings with four wins and three defeats, the latest being over Kaukauna last week when the teams went two overtimes and then resorted to free throws. Road Games Appear to be
Jinx for Denney's Vikes

"GUESS I've got a ball team like the Chicago Cubs; play like a million dollars when they show at home and then go all to pieces when they take to the road and play in someone else's gym. Maybe I'll write Charlie Grimm and see if he can help me."

Coach Art Denney of the Lawrence college basketball team might have said that this week when he recalled last week's trip into Illinois and mused over the prospects of another road jaunt Saturday. But as Art didn't want to say just it for him.

However, the Viking mentor has reason to compare his proteges with the Cubs for the Vikes have won only one start on the road and with Carleton and Cornell as future road opponents, the outlook isn't much better.

The principle reason for the Vikes' road woes is the fact that the team is the largest in the American Legion's state bowling tournament which is unusually high, it was announced today by John Bauer, Appleton director of the state league bowling association, but local interest is lagging.

Legion Meet Blanks

Outside interest in the American Legion's state bowling tournament is unusually high, it was announced today by John Bauer, Appleton director of the state league bowling association, but local interest is lagging.

"Indications are the tournament will be the largest in Legion history but we'd like to have the Appleton teams which have blanketed them in as soon as possible," Bauer said. He mentioned that while the veterans were sure the Appleton teams would enter, slowness of the entry blanks is holding up a lot of detail that should be gotten out of the way.

Trophies and the American Legion's prizes, which will be part of the prizes offered, will be received in a few days and will be placed on display in a downtown store window, Bauer said.

The tournament opens on Elks alley March 13 and continues through April 30. The entries must be in by Feb. 20.

32 to 28 and then was cut to 32 to 29 when Mutz dumped a free throw. The gym was a madhouse during the last minute and with 10 seconds to go McKee's was fouled while shooting and made one toss to give Appleton a 33 to 29 win.

Terrors Outscored
During that hectic last half Appleton scored 15 points to 23 for Fond du Lac. Appleton's total showed three field goals and nine free throws. Fond du Lac coined ten field goals and three gift shots. Meyers got four field goals. McKee's two and three free throws. Sellers one goal and four free throws and Slatery three goals and a free throw to lead Appleton. Wilderman scored six field goals and a free throw and Lehner four field goals and two free throws to lead Fond du Lac.

ing defeats down in Illinois last week was the absence of Cliff Burton who had to be left home with an injured foot. The games showed that the big forward is a highly important cog in the wheel for he is tall, fast, a good defensive player and can crack through with a few buckets when they are needed. Had he been around at Monmouth he'd have scored a few points and kept the Vikes from going to pieces in the closing minutes. And at Knox he's taken care of that tall Swisher who ruined the Vikes and he'd given Lawrence a lot of height where they needed it.

Cliff will be back on the squad for the Carleton trip, Denney has announced, and if the Appleton youth can snap the Vikes back into old time form the outlook might not be as bad as it has been painted. The Illinois trip had its advantages in that George Bennetts and Norman Jackson both saw a lot of action and should be better reserves.

Lawrence will leave on the Carleton trip Friday by bus with a swimming team and handball and squash players in tow. The handball and squash team will meet University of Minnesota performers Friday night at St. Paul, and on Saturday the whole group will oppose Carleton athletes.

CARLS UNDEFEATED
Monmouth, Ill.,—Carleton college seems headed to another Midwest conference basketball championship as the result of victories over Coe and Cornell last weekend. Carleton has three more conference games, meeting Knox on Friday, Lawrence on Saturday, and Beloit a week from Friday. All three games will be played on Carleton's court.

Five conference games are scheduled for this week, including the two involving Carleton. Beloit plays a return engagement at Ripon tomorrow night. Ripon won the first game. Monmouth goes to Beloit on Friday and Coe to Cornell. In the first game Cornell won by 2 point margin at home.

Fondy Y Volleyballers Down Appleton Squad
The strong Fond du Lac Y volleyball team defeated the local aggregation three games out of five in the Y gym last night by scores of 15-2, 8-15, 6-15, 15-3 and 15-13. The matches were close and exciting throughout, with plenty of good setups and "kills" being made during the evening. The local team showed a complete reversal of form over the first meeting of the two teams at Fond du Lac a few weeks ago and all points made were hard-fought. Both teams made some remarkable recoveries and saves with the Fondy team having a slight edge in returns from the back court.

The local team meets the Sun Light Dairies of Oshkosh on the local Y floor Friday evening.

KIMBERLY—The Kimberly club cagers defeated Neenah-Clark basketball team of Neenah, 43 to 34, at the clubhouse Tuesday evening. The Neenah Parkmakers are leaders in the Industrial league in their city.

Both teams played tight ball in the starting quarter being careful of their shots. The lead changed several times and the quarter ended in a tie, 8-all.

In the second quarter the Clubbers trailed as Slooky Bourassa of Neenah began to get hot by making six points by field goals and Whitpan two baskets. Hofkans scored a bucket and Bowman two gift shots for Kimberly as they trailed at the half 12 to 18.

Kimberly came back strong in the third quarter as Le May scored four baskets Bowman two. Albers two and Hofkans one making 18 points and putting the local team in front, 30 to 25, at the third quarter. At no time during the final quarter did the Neenah squad overcome Kimberly's lead.

Bowman carried most of Kimberly's load making seven baskets and two free throws. Snooky Bourassa, a former Kimberly Papermaker, lead his team with six buckets and a gift shot.

Merchants, Fondy in
5 to 5 Hockey Game

Appleton Merchant Hockey team last night played a 5 to 5 game with the strong Fond du Lac sextet at Jones park rink. The squads went into one overtime and then decided to call quits because of the cold. Fondy is probably the strongest team in this section of the state. Fond du Lac took a 3 to 1 lead at the end of the first period and held a 4 to 2 margin at the end of the second. The Merchants then evened the count in the final period. Eddie Hildebrandt scored twice, Tod O'Dell once, and the Babino brothers once each for the Merchants.

Tonight the Merchants will meet Manitowish here and Sunday will battle Marshfield here.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

If you don't think that Fox River Valley conference basketball teams, and especially our Appleton High school cagers, rate pretty high in state cage circles then do a little comparing.

Appleton defeated Wisconsin Rapids, the Wisconsin River Valley leader, twice this season. The Rapids is undefeated leader in the Wisconsin Valley loop of them over Stevens Point. And then the other evening Stevens Point, which rates only fourth in its circuit, bumped Madison East, undefeated leader in the Big Eight conference, which is supposed to be the best basketball loop in the southern part of the state.

All of which rates Appleton just about tops. But please don't mention Sheboygan.

Eddie Kotal, formerly Lawrence coach and sports star, has added

Chute Hall for Crucial Contest

LITTLE CHUTE—Followers of St. John Catholic High school basketball team are getting keyed this week for what may be the top game in the Fox River Valley Catholic conference—St. Norbert versus St. John at Little Chute. The Norbertines are leading the circuit but St. John is in second place and is conceded an excellent chance—at least by Chute fans—of beating the invaders. The two schools will meet again Feb. 19 at West DePere.

Feeling pretty good over their wins over Kaukauna and Menasha St. Mary, the Chuters are working hard for the Norbertines. They appreciate that if they work together and pass the ball around they have an even chance of winning; they also appreciate that if they let teamwork go and go in for a little personal glory they may not do so well and "blow" the best opportunity of the season. In the latter connection their latest reminder is their terrible first half showing at Menasha St. Mary.

Friday night's preliminary will show the Little Chute Legion team and the Merchants playing a Holy Name league contest being advanced from Feb. 18 when Jordan college cagers, composed largely of Little Chute boys, will come to the village. The Legion and Merchants are leaders in the Holy Name loop.

GREEN BAY—Amateur scrapers of Northeastern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan will start swinging here Thursday evening, Feb. 11, in first round matches of the fifth annual Golden Gloves tournament for this section. About 175 boys have entered, and a great majority will compete.

The tournament will be held at the Columbus Community club. Following the first elimination matches Feb. 11, fighting will continue Friday, Feb. 12, when all brackets down to finals in both novice and regular divisions will be completed. The finals are scheduled for Friday, Feb. 19, and the eight regular champions will participate in the annual Chicago Tournament of Champions.

Of great interest to ring fans of this section was the announcement that six regular boxers of St. Norbert College, including some of the Midwest's best amateur talent, will compete in the Northeastern Wisconsin-Upper Michigan meet.

Enter Full Team
The Green Knight scrapers, each one a contender for honors in his weight class, are Al Scarlaty, 118 pounds; Lauren Chesley, 126; Johnny Anderson, 135; Savio Canada, 147; Al Ulrich, 160; and Tom Kennally, heavyweight.

Four boxers who have won Golden Gloves championships in their amateur ring careers have entered. Earl Noel, Marinette, will defend his 112-pound crown, and Frank Duket, Marinette, will battle again at 175 pounds. Bruce Fero, Oshkosh scrapper, who was a Milwaukee Golden Gloves champ last year, will fight in the 126-pound class, as will Johnny Cluckey, Neenah, a two-year champ at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Final mopping-up of tournament assignments was taking place this week, in preparation for the annual event, and advance ticket sales are setting a new record.

Hunk Anderson to Sue
On Coaching Contract

Charlotte, N. C.—Hunk Anderson said today he would instruct his attorneys to institute suit against N. C. State college for $5,000 as a result of the school's failure to renew his contract as head football coach.

The former Notre Dame mentor, who was replaced at state by Williams (Doc) Newton, said he felt he had a just claim because Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the Greater University of North Carolina, overruled the N. C. State Athletic committee when it recommended he be retained.

RETURNS CUB CONTRACT
Chicago—Clay Bryant, right handed pitcher, has returned his signed contract to the Chicago Cubs. This leaves Curt Davis and Tex Carleton the only members of last year's pitching staff who haven't come to terms for 1937.

Chicago (P)—The campaign to bring a world's heavyweight battle between Champion James J. Braddock and Joe Louis to Chicago next June hit the doldrums today.

The park board, which controls Soldier Field, postponed yesterday for one week a decision on granting the stadium as a site for the bout. President Robert Upham of the board said the question has been raised whether the stadium, erected by taxpayers as a park facility, should be used in a money-making venture.

The board, he said, also remembers the numerous complaints of persons who purchased cheap seats to the Tunney-Dempsey fight in 1927 and then claimed they were too far from the ring to see the battle.

Should the board decide against leasing the field an impasse may result. The other site which has been considered, Comiskey park, home of the Chicago White Sox, is not favored by Joe Gould, Braddock's manager. Comiskey park could seat 75,000 to the 130,000 capacity of Soldier Field.

Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission and a leading figure in efforts to land the bout for Chicago, met today with Mayor Edward J. Kelly's committee arranging the city's 1937 centennial celebration. The committee hopes to have the title bout as a main attraction of the summer jubilee program.

Winona Packers To Battle Stars

Minnesota Team Boasts Several Outstanding Middle West Cagers

Oshkosh—It will be something of an interstate championship battle here Saturday evening when the Oshkosh All Stars, virtual champions of Wisconsin, meet the Interstate Packers of Winona, professional champions of Minnesota.

Heading the Minnesota quintet will be big Ed "Moose" Krause, the three-time All-American in both football and basketball of Notre Dame university. Krause is now head coach and athletic director at St. Mary's college at Winona.

Oshkosh will have two former All-Americans in its lineup in Ed Mullen, guard, who played at Marquette university, and LeRoy Edwards, center, an All-American while at the University of Kentucky.

Both teams have a number of other stars that have been whittled into smooth-functioning machines that should perform in one of the closest battles ever seen on the Oshkosh floor.

Last season the invading team played under the name of Minnesota Coaches, as each member of the team is a high school or college coach. They did not tangle with the All Stars in the 1935-36 season and fans of the game in the two states are watching the outcome of the contest this year.

Last season will be his brother, Phil Krause, who played three years at DePaul university of Chicago; Jerry Tully, all-southern guard while attending the University of Carolina; Harry Moran, who played at the University of Wisconsin; Larry Santelman, all-state guard for three years at St. Olaf, and George Carsten, three-time all-conference center at La Crosse Teachers college.

In an effort to make this lineup even stronger, the Packers have contacted George Roscoe, former University of Minnesota basketball and football star, and Ray Antil, another Gopher athlete.

Davey Day Gets His Big Chance

Meets Lou Ambers in Non-Title Bout at New York Tonight

New York (P)—Lou Ambers, the lightweight ruler, gets another chance tonight to show that he can fight like a champion when his title is not at stake. He faces Davey Day, lanky Chicago lightweight and stabilizer of welterweight champion Barney Ross, in a ten-round overweigh scrap at the Hippodrome.

Since he took the title from Tony Canzoneri last year, Lou has had little success in non-title fights. He lost decisions to Eddie Cool and Jimmie McLeanin, was held to a draw by Enrico Venturi and stopped Stumpy Jacobs.

Day, whose 135 pounds are stretched over a five foot, nine inch frame, is rated No. 1 challenger for lightweight honors in his home state. Here he's just another boy trying to get along as the last time he fought in New York he took a thorough licking from Al Roth.

The Chicagoan and his manager Art Winch, figure Davey has improved considerably since that bout, however, and they're taking a very small percentage of tonight's "gate," in order to prove it.

Charges Literature Is Debased by Propaganda By Groups, Individuals

Neenah—Declaring that literature had been debased and debased in the interests of personal and private groups by the subtle but insidious use of propaganda, Dr. Florence Case, Oshkosh Teachers college, told Woman's Tuesday club members at the Neenah library Tuesday afternoon that however well concealed that propaganda is, there is always a definite purpose in the mind of the writer. "There is no end to propaganda,"

Today there is no greater dissembler of propaganda owned, controlled and paid for by the people than the New Deal with its many bureau publicity men who explain the program to the people was Dr. Case's contention.

"Today propaganda is a much despised word. Up to 1914 that word called forth little of the hatred that it does today. Propaganda in literature is not new, on the contrary, it is as old as time. Art, poetry, prose and music have all been used as implements of propaganda."

"Explains Difference
The difference between advertising and propaganda is that the former is frank, open and above board, the latter is subtle, concealed and suggestive. The propagandist conceals his identity, the advertiser carries his name on his advertising. "In literature, the writer makes an effort to inculcate some definite fundamental idea in his carefully concealed propaganda until people begin to believe it. Propaganda literature rarely stirs up the emotions. It is inherently tricky, insidious and that is why today propaganda is so abhorred."

"Who uses propaganda? Everybody. How do they use it? By

SCHEDULE GAME

Neenah — The freshman basketball teams of Neenah and Menasha High schools will play a game at Roosevelt grade school gymnasium Thursday afternoon, according to Coach Clarence Brendendick. Menasha won a previous game by a narrow margin.

words and the way words are used. Take the words "hundred percent" or "villain"? What does it connote? Maddox of England once said "he who wants to persuade should trust not in the right argument but to the right word . . . nothing great ever comes from deflection or deep thought. Give me the right word and the right accent and I'll move the world." Maddox quoted that from Joseph Conrad. Will Irwin said that we are prone to attach a meaning to a word until it gets a halo around it.

"Before the World War, propaganda meant the political faith to convert the unconvinced. About 1916 that meaning changed.

Gives Readings
Dr. Case illustrated her discussion of propaganda in literature with readings from "Julius Caesar" by Shakespeare (Anthony's funeral oration for Caesar); Elizabeth Barrett Browning's "The Cry of the Children" and Thomas Hood's "The Song of the Shirt." It was pointed out that in the case of the latter two poems, legislation action on industrial conditions resulted.

"Probably the greatest piece of propaganda ever published in the world was Harriet Beecher Stowe's 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' a purely imaginary story that held universal appeal and was translated into 26 different languages. It had deep pathos, bigness and greatness and it was simply written. Today it isn't even considered literature but it had the greatest sale of any book in the country and it helped bring about a great social change."

Dr. Case further commented on propaganda evident in poetry and prose by John Greenleaf Whittier, James Russell Lowell and Walt Whitman.

"The new Russian Primer was considered in America as a big piece of propaganda while Russia teaches that the political science books in America are nothing but propaganda."

Just Propaganda.
"T. S. Eliot's 'Murder in the Cathedral' is nothing but propaganda. George Bernard Shaw's 'Bachelor House' is really an attack on the slum conditions. Ibsen's 'Doll House' was written during a feminine rights movement and you will remember that Ibsen has Nora say, in answer to her husband's refusal to forgive one transgression on the grounds that 'no man would,' 'but millions of women have done it.'"
Dr. Case continued her discussion with a discussion of John Galsworthy, George Creel who was head of censorship during the World War, Charley Michelsen, ghost writer for Roosevelt, the play "Wintereset," and Ivy Lee, one of the best publicity men this country has produced.

"You may ask if propaganda ever ends, it goes on and on. I have only touched the edge in this discussion today."

More Violence Is Reported in Drivers' Strike

Beer Mug Smashes Window of Taxicab at Menasha

Menasha—Violence again flared in the Checker Cab company drivers strike here about 10:30 last night when an unknown person hurled a large beer stein through the right rear window of a taxi driven by Harold Veeser, 749 Congress street, Neenah.

Veeser received a call from the Menasha Eagles club to pick up two passengers. When his fares had stepped into the cab and as it was pulling away from the curb, the beer mug was thrown, breaking the window and scattering glass about the interior. No one was injured. Miss Della Schanck, 852 Appleton road, Menasha, was one of the passengers, the other is unknown.

Menasha Police questioned several suspects last night and the man in being sought by Police Al. Slomski warned this morning that anyone caught interfering with cabs will be prosecuted.

Police also are seeking an unknown assailant who slugged Ralph Ashley, another taxi driver, when he was called to deliver a bottle of beer near the Neenah Water works about 9 o'clock Monday evening.

George Seibing, manager of the company, said this morning that every precaution is being taken to avoid trouble. Drivers are instructed to scrutinize passengers carefully before allowing them to enter their cabs and to avoid trips to out-of-the-way places.

Earl Clark, spokesman for the striking cab drivers, said this morning that everything was being done to avoid violence and that peaceful picket lines were being conducted in defense of the strikers' rights to organize and bargain collectively.

"The Checker Cab company has not as yet asked for anything in the way of terms and a settlement," he said. "We want to thank all those individuals and the Coopers' union for their financial contributions and foodstuffs."

Ervin Wheelock, secretary of the Neenah-Menasha Trades and Labor council said: "Our old union members are proud of these striking cab drivers in going right on with their picketing of the Checker Cab office in the Brin building. It certainly is not pleasant to walk slowly in the wind when they must do so below zero weather, and their determination to win a higher wage is strengthened."

Native Wisconsin Trees Conservation Commission Tells How to Identify Them, Discusses Their Value to State

WHITE CEDAR
The white cedar or arbor vitae is found throughout the state, excepting the southwest portion, along streams or in swamps where the water is not stagnant, and farther north, appears on well-drained slopes, usually in mixture with hardwoods.

The mature tree is usually 50 to 60 feet high and 2 to 3 feet in diameter, with a buttressed trunk and narrow compact crown. The leaves are scale-like yellow-green, falling with the short lateral branchlets. The cones are 1-3 to 1 1/2 inch long with only 6 to 12 scales, and mature in one season. The bark is grayish to reddish brown, thin, furrowed, separating into long, stringy strips. The wood is light, soft, brittle, coarse-grained, durable, fragrant, pale yellow-brown and is largely used for ties, fence posts, telephone poles and singles and sometimes sawed into lumber, the better grades being used for boat and canoe planking.

The cedar is most valuable as an ornamental tree, especially the many varieties horticulturists have developed. As a timber tree it will be confined to sites too wet for faster growing species, or growth in mixture with ash and elm.

Chapter One
A RUSSIAN DANCER INTRIGUES HER SHIPMATES

IN one way or another, most of the passengers in the same class get acquainted before the ship is three days out from port, but on that particular crossing, nobody had succeeded in making the acquaintance of Madame Karsanoff. And although there would have been gossip about her in any case, there was a good deal more owing to her plain determination to remain aloof. Neither Bigelow nor Dr. Austrelitz, with whom he was traveling - had made any attempt to speak to her, but a number of others had without accomplishing anything.

If she happened to be walking when addressed, she always replied politely if briefly and passed on. If she happened to be lying out in her stateroom chair, swathed in furs, she acknowledged whatever observation was made to her and closed her eyes. "Woody" Taylor had been the most persistent in making friendly overtures, but despite his youthful good looks and charm and his millions, he had fared no better than the older men - much to his own surprise and that of the onlookers.

A small table had been reserved for her in the dining room and she lunched and dined alone there, apparently unaware of the curious and interested eyes fixed upon her. Occasionally, she walked on deck. The rest of her time, she spent in her deck chair or in her cabin - which was directly opposite Bigelow's.

On that particular voyage, there happened to be no other celebrity on board, except Dr. Austrelitz, of course, and there is never so much interest in a psychologist - even a world-famous psychologist - as in the most inconsequential theatrical personality. And Karsanoff was well up toward the top of her profession. So naturally everybody on the ship watched and discussed Karsanoff.

On the fourth night out, she wore her famous emeralds and in the smoking room, afterwards, Bigelow heard a man behind him retelling the popular tale which associated the emeralds with a certain exiled monarch.

"It's odd," said Bigelow, "how much interest that woman manages to arouse in everyone on board - except you." He lighted a cigarette, studying Austrelitz.

Austrelitz smiled, half closing his keen grey eyes. "But she interests me very much," he protested, "when she dances."

"And not otherwise? You don't find her intriguing at close range?" Austrelitz shrugged slightly. "I am 48 years old," he reminded Bigelow, and smoothed back his thick grey hair. "I'm afraid I have lived too long to fall under the spell of that particular type of enchantress."

Such a Perfect Specimen

"You don't think she might interest you if you knew her?" "Fortunately for me," Austrelitz said, "all of my illusions were shattered long ago. A doctor is thrown into such intimate contact with so many women. Are you interested in Madame Karsanoff?"

"Only casually," Bigelow assured him, grinning, and the glance they exchanged revealed the friendship that existed between them in spite of the difference in their ages. Bigelow was accustomed to explaining that he had inherited Austrelitz, who had been a close friend to his father.

"She is such a perfect specimen of her type," continued Bigelow. "So sleek and well groomed - so poised."

Austrelitz nodded. "And she looks," he agreed, "as if she knows everything there is to know about life and finds nothing worth while."

"Exactly."

"Whereas," pursued the doctor laughing softly, "she really knows nothing and finds everything worth while. She merely has the gift of inspiring one's imagination. That is what makes famous courtesans. They need not be beautiful; they need not even be young; they need not be clever nor talented, but they must be able to stir a man's romantic imagination. This intangible quality - which I believe was called 'glamor' yesterday - is only a kind of mirage."

Austrelitz drank his brandy and drew out his cigar case. With loving care, he selected a cigar, punctured the end and lighted it. Bigelow admired the long, slender, clever fingers. They had the thoughtful brown eyes moved upward to study the lean, tanned face of the older man. It was an arresting face . . . Bigelow wondered how many women had loved this man - he was so obviously the type that appealed to women.

"Tell me," said Austrelitz suddenly, "when you look at Madame Karsanoff, what do you see?"

"A very striking looking woman," answered Bigelow slowly. "Not precisely a beauty - according to classic standards - but an individual - with magnetism and charm."

Austrelitz smiled. "I," said he, "see a guarded, watchful creature who looks upon life as a battle which she is prepared to wage ruthlessly. Her physical attractiveness is her armor - and she keeps it brightly polished. Her soft looks and soft words and mysterious smiles are her weapons."

"It's a diverting impression," admitted Bigelow.

"I always try to see things as they are, rather than as others would have me see them," went on Austrelitz.

Bigelow nodded without replying. He was thinking of his early years in America when he had first known Austrelitz. Even in those days, he had liked the doctor because he had always talked to him as though they were colleagues. And when Bigelow's parents had decided upon their divorce, it had been Austrelitz who was chosen to explain the matter to the boy.

Bigelow had gone with his mother to Paris to live, shortly after that, and had remained there with her after her marriage to the Duc de Saint Cyr. So in the years while he was growing up, he had seen

Eight Schools
Now Entered in Cage Tournament

All Of Teams Invited to Enter
Have Accepted
Invitation

Kaukauna — The seven schools besides Kaukauna which have been named to play in the Class "B" high school basketball tournament here March 10, 11, 12 and 13 have all written that they will enter, Principal Olin G. Dryer announced this week.

Affirmative replies to questionnaires sent out last week by the athletic association have been received from all the schools, Dryer said, and the schedule of games is now being drawn up.

Kaukauna will be host to De Pere, Clintonville, Waupaca, Shawano, Neenah, Menasha and West De Pere at the tournament.

A pre-tournament banquet which officials from the different schools and representatives from organizations here in the city will attend will be held in Hotel Kaukauna Thursday night, Feb. 18. Bringing together superintendents, principals and coaches of all eight schools along with prominent citizens from Kaukauna, the dinner will be followed by an open forum discussion on the plans for the tournament.

Edward Rennie, member of the board of education, is chairman for his banquet at which Harry McAndrews, city attorney, will be master of ceremonies. The president or a delegated representative from each civic and fraternal group in the city will be invited to be present.

Sophomores Start
Work on Orations

Kaukauna — The sophomores this week started work on their orations for the high school oratory contest held each year between the classes A champion in each class is named first and these four students then vie for school honors.

Coached by Tom Nolan, the sophomores will select orations dealing with the subject of crime and are expected to have them ready within three weeks.

The freshmen will talk on safety and the juniors and seniors on any social economic or political topic. Following is the list of sophomores who have entered the contest: Eugene Boettcher, Clifford Kasta, Robert Niesen, Robert Dougherty, Jerry Reichel, John Burns, John McDermott, Herbert Miller, Robert Voet, Peter Lang, Paul Keil, Earl O'Connor, Robert Johnson and David Nelson.

Little Illness Among Pupils at Kaukauna

Kaukauna — This city's public and parochial grade school children have been particularly fortunate in escaping sicknesses which have affected youngsters in other communities in the state this winter, Miss Cecil Flynn, city nurse, pointed out this week.

Despite a damp unhealthy winter with abrupt changes in temperature, attendance at the schools has been satisfactory, she said. Only when it was too cold for small children to venture out has the absentee list been noticeable.

Except for a few individual cases, there has been little flu or whooping cough reported among the children and few cases of severe colds.

Scouts Practice Act
For Council Circus

Kaukauna — Troop 20 of the Boy Scouts is busy this week practicing a pyramid act which they will present jointly with troops from Appleton and Combined Locks at the Valley Council Scout circus Saturday night in the Alexander gymnasium at Appleton.

Herb Niesen, scoutmaster, has been directing their work. The boys who will take part in the act are: Buckley Jones, Junior Nagel, Theodore Weber, R. Mooney, Karl Miller, Lester Pardee, John Wandell, Russell Toms, John Kirsten, Dean Esler, Billy Mitchell, John Hoffensperger and Kenneth Balgie.

Truck Collects Paper
And Old Magazines

Kaukauna — A Red Cross truck was in the city today collecting old magazines and papers which will be sold and the money added to flood relief funds. The truck called at north side homes today and tomorrow will work the south side. Residents wishing to contribute have been asked to leave bundles on the porches or at the curbs.

KAUKAUNA PERSONALS

Kaukauna — C. R. Seaborn, Dan Wicker, and J. A. Slaid of the Thimble Pulp and Paper company attended a meeting of the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry at the Conway Hotel at Appleton.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Buman of West Allis last week. Both formerly lived in Appleton and Mrs. Buman was Margaret Spoel.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Kaukauna — Word was received yesterday of the death of Matt Paul, former Kaukauna resident, in Milwaukee this week. Mr. Paul had charge of the express office here at one time.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Merles barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. Don Anderson is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Second Annual Basketball
Jamboree Planned Tonight

Kaukauna — Featuring horseback basketball and the appearance of the high school faculty and a group of prominent business men as cage artists, the second annual basketball jamboree will open at 6:15 tonight in the gymnasium.

Sponsored by the high school athletic association, the jamboree will bring 12 teams together in six games. Two of the contests, the faculty against the industrial league officials and the athletic council against the business men, stand out as certain thrillers.

Superintendent James F. Cavanaugh, faculty coach, has already said that his boys "would have no trouble" in winning from the league team. With the cross fires which have been burning between the opposing players, an explosive game is expected tonight.

Led by curly Ed Rennie, the athletic council is determined to prove that it is athletic by disposing of the business men whom, it is said, they have termed "softies". Bill Hass, Robert Knox, Charles D. Tinsley, and Glenn Miller are other members of the council's quintet.

The business men's squad will have H. Olin, E. Kavanagh, C. Hansen, M. Hass, R. Stroetz, Harry McAndrews, K. Rennie, and Dr. M. G. Teske in short pants tonight.

Following is the schedule of games: St. Mary's versus Holy Cross, 8:15; Berens' girls versus High School girls, 7 o'clock; high school faculty versus industrial league officials, 7:30; House of David versus Midgits, 8 o'clock; athletic council versus business men, 8:30; exhibition of horseback basketball, 9 o'clock.

Social Items

Kaukauna — The Ladies Aid society of the Congregational church will hold a bake sale starting at 11:30 Saturday morning in Look's drug store on Second street.

The ladies of St. Mary's church will hold a Friday afternoon card party at the home of Mrs. Harry Watson, E. Seventh street.

The Altar society of St. Mary's church will meet in the church hall following services tonight to hear Louis Nelson deliver the first of a series of papers on the sacrifice of the mass. A discussion will follow.

The Catholic Women's Study club will meet Thursday night in the Knights of Columbus club rooms on Wisconsin avenue. Papers will be read by Miss Rose Phillips, Mrs. Mary Hooyman and Mrs. Martin Van Roy.

The Women's Benefit association will meet at 8 o'clock Friday night at the clubrooms on Second street. Following the business session, cards will be played. Hostesses will be Mrs. Sally Helf, Mrs. Betsy Heilmann, and Mrs. Margaret Hennessey.

Mr. and Mrs. Olin G. Dryer entertained four men teachers at a dinner at their home Monday night. The guests were Clarence Kriesa, Howard Gutgesell, James Lang and Tom Nolan.

High School Frosh
Will Meet Menasha

Kaukauna — The high school freshman basketball team will meet the Menasha yearlings at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Menasha gymnasium.

Coached by Clifford Kemp, the Kau first year players have won games this year from the "B" and "C" squads. Holy Cross grade quintet, and freshman teams from Kimberly, Neenah, and Menasha, the team they face tomorrow again. They lost one game to New London. The 12 boys who will make the trip are: William Alger, Leo Wolf, Ken Busse, Junior Swedeburg, Donald Bisley, Karl Miller, James Sanders, Robert Deras, Jack Winn, Vergil Belongse, and John Wandell.

Lincoln's Life
Is Reviewed in
Talk Before Club

Superintendent Cavanaugh
Addresses Members
Of Lions

Kaukauna — A president who faced the greatest national disaster, a country torn from civil strife and yet managed to keep his judgment sound and his kindly nature unimpaired—this was the picture of Abraham Lincoln drawn for members of the Lions club by James F. Cavanaugh, superintendent of schools, last night.

Speaking at a regular meeting at Hotel Kaukauna, Cavanaugh told the club that "although Lincoln is gone, we have not lost him, for he will endure as long as the republic lasts and its people live."

The speaker praised Lincoln's "matchless diplomacy and unyielding firmness" in his decisions during the time he was president and said: "He had had one outstanding quality. He was faced with the greatest hardships that ever beset any president, but he could always make the best of them."

Cavanaugh pointed to Lincoln's great tactfulness as one of the attributes that stamped him a great statesman and related several stories showing the Civil War president's ability in dealing with people.

"The ultimate proof of his great character came at the end of the war," Cavanaugh declared, "when many people in the North wanted to further punish the South and Lincoln wouldn't stand for it. His attitude was always one of forgiveness."

Beguhn Named Manager
Of Industrial League

Kaukauna — Stanley Beguhn, high school industrial arts instructor, has been appointed manager of the Industrial Basketball league by George Greenwood, president. He succeeds Dan Collins who resigned at the conclusion of first-half competition.

Ray Schwanke of Kimberly is now officiating at the Sunday afternoon and Monday evening games after the withdrawal of Coach Paul Little.

Under The Capitol Dome

By John Wyngaard
Post-Crescent Staff Correspondent

Madison — That there is little love lost between Senators John E. Cashman and Allan J. Busby, both Progressives, is becoming more and more evident as the legislature swings into action. Cashman has made some harsh statements about Senator Busby in the last few weeks, and presents his appearance in the senate, where they sit opposite each other. Cashman has repeatedly charged that Busby was an assemblyman in 1935 was a friend of the oleo-margarine interests, and this the Denmark member regards as unforgivable, for his oleo-margarine law is his particular pet. Busby got his start as a high school principal in Little Chute about 15 years ago.

Regent Anton M. Miller of the university board of regents is said to have some definite ideas on the problem of a new university president, but the Little Chute farmer-member is not making his feelings public, at least not yet. Miller was one of the regents voting for President Glenn Frank's dismissal last month.

Old timers at the capitol, who have seen lobbyists come and go for the last three decades, believe that this legislature may see the 1935 number exceeded. More than 1200 lobbyists registered for the 1935. Week by week the number is now growing.

Those who criticize or propose to change the morals in the state capitol run the risk of the anger and opposition of Kewanee county's assemblyman Albert D. Shumek, who regards the paintings as singularly appropriate for this state. Mr. Shumek, a former high school principal, knows the history of Wisconsin as few men do, and knows the symbolic meanings of the paintings which adorn the statehouse. He likes nothing better than to explain the murals to visitors.

Reports that Andrew A. Washburn, Clintonville editor and farmer, will receive one of the posts on the three man commission which governs the department of agriculture and markets have pretty well subsided, due to the rumored plan of Governor LaFollette for the reorganization of state departments.

And while others gossip about the reorganization plan, many political old timers are freely expressing the fear that any such move will result in a wholesale hiring and firing of employees and department heads. Among those who will oppose any movement to place state commissions under one man rule is Senator John Cashman, who has declared his belief that the elder LaFollette's three man system is a wise one, and should be continued.

Democratic leaders, including William B. Rubin of Milwaukee, are said to approve of the one man system, and are now discussing the matter with their party representatives in the legislature.

Capital politicians are receiving frequent reports that a substantial number of Progressive lawyers are sending assurances of support to Judge Joseph Martin, a Democrat, who is a candidate to succeed himself on the state supreme court in the spring election. It is no secret that Fred M. Wylie, in the contest as a Progressive, is opposed by influential sections of his party, while Glenn Turner, Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation candidate, is not seriously considered as a contender.

Fast friends, and joint sponsors of bills and resolutions are Assemblymen Wm. Sweeney of De Pere and William Rohan of Kaukauna. Both Democrats, they will probably ly work together on their bills during the rest of the session.

While its votes were useful to the Progressives last fall, many within the party find themselves wondering now whether the alliance with the Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation was worth the effort, and there are those veterans who look upon the FLP as a district liability. Disturbance within the organization are now frequent; Governor LaFollette has always been cool toward it, and the recent resignation of Joseph Padway is taken as a token of the disension rife within its ranks.

Reports received in Madison that some gasoline station operators are using secret pipe lines to adulterate low test gasoline with fuel oil, or "distillate" in order to escape the gasoline taxes may have an airing in the legislature soon. One senator has received reports of this practice, and is now investigating.

Potpouri: Nels Larson of Neenah is back in his old seat in the assembly after a six year absence. Succeeding William Grimes of Menasha, Larson is back in the chair he occupied from 1921 to 1931. The prayer which opens each session of the assembly costs the taxpayers three dollars. Senate chaplains get the same fee. "Cascy" Jansen of Little Chute expects to be in Madison in the interests of special legislation this winter. At least one of the younger assemblymen is repeatedly mistaken for a page by his colleagues. Although senate rules forbid smoking during session, most members seem to be unaware of it. Inseparable companion of Assemblyman Paul Fuhrman of Bowler is his corncob pipe. The idea that legislative novitiates hold their peace while they are being orientated is not taken seriously by Assemblyman Mark Catlin Jr., of Appleton. Catlin frequently speaks on measures before the assembly.

WELCOME STRANGERS

Steel Leaders As Shares Move To Higher Ground

Some Issues at Highest Point Since Depression; Selling Absorbed

Compiled by the Associated Press
Steel shares advanced today in the stock market, leading to day splashed gains of fractions to 4 points over the ticker tape. A number reached new high ground since the depression.

U. S. Steel was again the spectacular mover, going through 105 for the first time since the depression. Virtually all groups participated in the advance. Late selling was fairly well absorbed. Transfers were around 3,000,000 shares.

Utilities leaped forward at the start as two important corporations announced a truce with the securities and exchange commission. Later the stocks took the place of fast dealings to be followed by the rails, coppers, motors and merchandising issues.

The volume dwindled after noon as offerings expanded and extreme advances were reduced in numerous instances.

Bonds and commodities developed uneven trends.

General Motors came back for a modest gain as hopes were renewed for a quick settlement of the strike. Chrysler, together with a number of truck company stocks, pushed to the fore.

Hogs Decline but Cattle Advance

Swine Receipts Increase at Yards: Prices Down Maximum of 10 Cents

Chicago—(AP)—Hog prices continued to decline today as supplies expanded but cattle values rose 25 cents in some cases, erasing losses sustained earlier in the week.

The strong to 25 cents higher tone of the steer and yearling trade permitted the sale of several loads of choice and prime beefs to shippers at $13.75 to $14.35. The bulk sold from $9.50 to $13.

Hogs were a shade in 10 cents lower. Top declined 5 cents to $10.25.

The lamb trade was slow because of the difference between sellers' and buyers' price ideas. They held best lambs at $11 and above but early bids were 25 lower at the top.

Wheat Quotations Higher but Corn Suffers Setback

Domestic Flour Sales Reported Largest in Two Months

Chicago—(AP)—Higher prices for wheat formed the rule today although extreme bulges were difficult to maintain.

Domestic flour sales the last week were reported as the largest in the last two months, owing to a flurry of family buying orders.

Contrasting with wheat action, were late setbacks of corn prices, with demand for corn lacking yesterday's urgency.

At the close, wheat was $\frac{1}{2}$ higher, compared with yesterday's finish, May 1.35 $\frac{1}{2}$, July 1.17 $\frac{1}{2}$, corn unchanged to $\frac{1}{2}$ lower, May 1.09 $\frac{1}{2}$, July 1.03 $\frac{1}{2}$, oats unchanged to $\frac{1}{2}$ up, and provisions 5 to 40 cents down.

Cause Not Learned

The cause of the accident cannot be determined officials said, until after the plane has been salvaged.
Airport attendants were mystified when the plane, coming into the airport from Los Angeles, obtained landing directions and then flew on over the bay.
Watchers at the airport followed its flying lights until it suddenly dove into the bay with a crash audible miles away.
A five hour search of the bay by planes and boats followed before the wreckage was found. A section of the fuselage and the tail end of the fuselage protruded above the surface. Both were stove in, indicating the transport hit the shallow water right side up with such an impact it was turned completely over.

Junior Waltonians Join in Campaign To Save Bird Life

Junior Isaac Walton league members at the Roosevelt and Wilson Junior High schools are taking part in a state-wide campaign to provide feed for birds while the ground is covered with heavily crusted snow.

The youngsters have purchased cracked corn and similar grains and have filled feeding stations at Pierce park, Erb park and Center swamp. They also have obtained suet from an Appleton market and have hung mesh bags of it in trees.

Motion pictures of the junior members at work on the project have been included in a film being prepared by R. L. Swanson, president of the Appleton chapter of the Walton league.

suburbs, street cars and in taxis to points of interest.

The pupils are traveling on an imaginary train and already have drawn large pictures of New York scenes. The drawings include the statue of liberty, traffic officers on main intersections and large skyscrapers.

Students are making their own valentines this year as money which originally would go toward buying the articles is being donated to the Red Cross.
